Pact Signed

Russia, U.S. Toast Hot Line

GENEVA (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union have signed an agreement setting up a hot-line circuit to keep constant contact between Moscow and Washington and help prevent an accidental war.

President Kennedy hailed the accord signed Thursday as a move towards arms control and said the line is "a first step to help reduce the risk of war occurring by accident or miscalculation."

FAST-MOVING EVENTS

"This age of fast-moving events requires quick, dependable communication in time of emergency," Kennedy said in a statement issued at Charleston, W.Va., where he attended a state centennial celebration.

In Geneva, Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin said he hoped the world will live in peace "so that the hot line need never be used."

CHAMPAGNE TOASTS

U.S. negotiator Charles C. Stille and Tsarapkin drank champagne toasts after they put their signatures to the accord in the palace of nations.

The line, expected to go into operation within two months, will use existing cable circuits from Washington via London, Copenhagen, Stockholm and Helsinki to Moscow.

IN PENTAGON

The Washington terminal will be in the Pentagon's National Command Centre. Operational responsibility has been given to the U.S. defence communications agency. The Moscow terminal will be in the Kremlin.

The lease of the 4,883-mile cable circuit costing $108,000 a year will be shared by the two governments, with the U.S. paying the larger share.

RADIO CIRCUIT

A radio circuit from Washington to Moscow via Tancier will serve as backup to the cable and help maintenance work. The cost of the radio circuit, $81,000 a year, will be shared equally by the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

Transmissions will be by coded and scrambled signals. Washington will generally transmit in English and Moscow in Russian but either language may be used in both directions.

RELAYED PROMPTLY

All messages passed over the line will be relayed "immediately and promptly" to the heads of government, an informed source said.

The two sides took no action on repeated hints from the British government that it would like to be hooked into the hot line "in due course."

Columbia Treaty

Canada-U.S. Talks Will Resume Soon

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S.-Canadian negotiations on the controversial Columbia River treaty are likely to begin within the next two weeks in Ottawa, informed sources said Thursday.

The talks would follow up discussions earlier this month between Canadian Prime Minister Pearson and British Columbia Premier Bennett on changes that Canada will seek in the treaty.

U.S. sources said they expected no great difficulties over changes except for the question of the price the United States would be willing to pay for Canadian power.

RATIFIED BY U.S.

The treaty for joint power and flood control development of the river system flowing through B.C. and the U.S. northwest was signed Jan. 17, 1961.

Key issues in holding up ratification of the pact had been: (1) British Columbia's desire to sell to the United States its share on the "downstream benefits" created by dams provided for in the treaty, and (2) negotiations over the price the United States would be willing to pay.

Ship Open To Public At Weekend

Foreign Control: $1,300 Per Man

OTTAWA (CP)—Foreign investment in Canada amounts to about $1,300 for every man, woman and child in the country, Jack Davis, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, said in the Commons Thursday night.

He said the new Liberal budget has faced up to the "substantial reality" of foreign ownership and control.

Mr. Davis, an economist and MP for Coast-Capilano riding in British Columbia, also said he would like to see Canada make a "tax haven" for industrial research and development, with earnings from such activities free of tax for "a substantial number of years."

This would keep more Canadians from moving to other countries, help the growth and efficiency of Canadian industry, and assist Canadians to buy back control of their economy.

Mr. Davis said the book value of foreign investment in Canada is an estimated $25,000,000,000 and the real value is considerably higher. It would take almost the whole of a year's national production to buy it back.

Minor Parties Press But Avoid Showdown

'GORDON MUST GO'

COLIN CAMERON

... passed up chance

OTTAWA (CP)—Gilles Gregoire, Social Credit financial critic, formally called on Finance Minister Gordon to resign Thursday as the storm of controversy swirling around the new Liberal minister continued to grow.

However, both Mr. Gregoire and Colin Cameron, New Democratic party financial critic, passed up their chances to introduce motions of non-confidence in the government as the budget debate entered its second day in the Commons.

NOT REINTRODUCED

Meanwhile, Mr. Gordon indicated that the controversial 30-per-cent "takeover" tax on large-scale Canadian stock sales to foreign investors, which he said Wednesday was being withdrawn, may not be reintroduced.

Under persistent opposition questioning, the minister said that whether there will be another tax resolution on foreign takeovers "depends on government policy" and on whether administrative difficulties can be resolved.

MINISTER TO RESIGN

Mr. Gregoire said the minister has a duty to resign "if he has any decency" because he bowed to pressure from financiers in withdrawing the takeover tax announced in last week's budget.

Mr. Cameron said the government is in "hopeless disarray" and presenting "a ludicrous spectacle to the world."

"For heaven's sake, pull yourself together," he shouted at the Liberal benches.

CRUCIAL VOTE

The life of the minority Liberal government was again at stake with a crucial vote of confidence set for Monday. The members will vote on a Progressive Conservative non-confidence motion criticizing Mr. Gordon for "failing to maintain the constitutional practice of the essential secrecy of the budget," and weakening public confidence.

The motion was presented Wednesday by Conservative financial critic George Nowlan, who blasted Mr. Gordon for "stupid procedure" in announcing suspension of the takeover tax while stock exchanges were still open. "Mr. Nowlan suggested that 'fortune' were made as a result."

TIMING INEXCUSABLE

Thursday Opposition Leader Diefenbaker called the timing "entirely inexcusable and unwarranted."

Mr. Gordon said the government thought the decision "should be announced as early as possible."

Prime Minister Pearson came to Mr. Gordon's defence Thursday by saying after a morning cabinet meeting that there is no question of Mr. Gordon resigning. Mr. Pearson told reporters any House censure motion against the finance minister would be treated as a challenge of non-confidence to the government.

It was the 60th day of the

Pearson, Expert Linked

OTTAWA (CP)—Conservative Eldon Woolliams said in the Commons Thursday night that the wife of the head of Harris and Partners, Toronto investment house from which the government borrowed a finance expert to help prepare the budget, is a first cousin of Prime Minister Pearson.

He charged that in engaging the expert, Finance Minister Gordon committed an indiscretion that affected not only his position but that of Mr. Pearson. He strongly implied that Mr. Gordon should resign.

FIRST COUSIN

Mr. Woolliams, speaking in the budget debate, said W. C. Harris of Harris and Partners is married to Ethel Bowles, a first cousin of the prime minister.

An expert on municipal finance employed by Harris and Partners, M. P. O'Connell, is one of three outside experts brought in by Mr. Gordon.

NO DIRECT CALL

The Conservative member for Bow River, while refraining from a direct call for Mr. Gordon's resignation, cited examples of chancellors of the exchequer resigning in Britain for compromising the secrets of the budget.

Among these he mentioned the case of Laborite Hugh Dalton, who submitted his resignation in 1947 after giving some hint to a newspaper man of what was in the budget.

Jack Davis (L.-Coast-Capilano), speaking after Mr. Woolliams, said some of the newer members of the Commons are dismayed at "the cynical attitude to the basic integrity and intelligence" of other members.

Pension Increase, Housing Plans Wind Up 60 Days

OTTAWA (CP)—The Pearson government marked its 60th day of decision Thursday by announcing major proposals on old age pensions, slum clearance and public housing, and technical training.

The government gave notice of these proposals to a House of Commons already facing a big work load of spending estimates and legislation, and which in its first 25 days has managed to pass only one bill—giving the administration an interim money supply.

Thursday's proposals in brief:

● A "Canada pension plan"—a comprehensive contributory scheme that would call for "progressive establishment" of pensions over a 10-year period. In the meantime the existing pension paid to everyone aged 70 and over would be raised $10 to $75 monthly.

● Loans totalling up to $100,000,000 for municipalities carrying out urban renewal programs; loans and grants for public housing projects and part payment of subsidies; bigger National Housing Act mortgages.

● Stepped-up aid to the provinces for technical and vocational training; Federal share of training employed persons raised to 75 per cent from 50; share raised from 75 per cent to 90 per cent for training the unemployed; extension of period for Ottawa's 75-per-cent share of building training facilities.

All three proposals still are in the resolution stage, where they lack details. Usually they are passed on Page 3.

Cuban Rebel Forces 'Invade' Homeland

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The once-shattered Cuban Revolutionary Council bounced back into the limelight Thursday with an announcement that it had sneaked commando forces into Cuba to begin a war that would "definitely" liberate the island from Communist rule.

For several days, the council said, "perfectly-armed" fighters have been landing in small groups at several points and merging with the underground. It added that they received a cheerful welcome and help from farmers in the landing areas.

STORMED BEACHES

First reports indicated that invaders had stormed the beaches, and the news caught Washington by surprise. A spokesman said the state department knew of no large-scale invasion and would know of one if one had occurred.

White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said he had no comment on the council's announcement.

INFILTRATION ONLY

Later the council's co-ordinator, Manuel Antonio de Varona, clarified that it was an infiltration movement.

Council members refused to say where the commandos started, where they landed, how many were involved and if more were on the way. Other exile sources estimated that 500 men had gone ashore so far.

The council originally was formed, with United States help for the purpose of launching the Bay of Pigs invasion April 17, 1961.

The commandos landing in Cuba represented three of the member groups—Rescue (rescue), the Revolutionary Revolutionary Movement and the Christian Democratic Movement.

"This is the beginning of the liberation of Cuba," said Luis Botifoll, a council spokesman. Varona said the infiltrators were well armed.

Negroes Give Word City Gives Lights

Labor Scores Heavily In Byelection

LEEDS, England (Reuters)—The Labor party won Britain's first "post-Profumo" bye-election Thursday, with the Conservative party getting fewer than half the votes it received in the 1959 general election. (See also Page 3).

Labor retained the Leeds-South seat left vacant by the death of former party leader Hugh Gaitskell.

Labor's victory was a foregone conclusion, but the drop in Conservative votes from 12,954 to 5,994 was considered significant.

Ottawa Ready In Dock Issue

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister MacEachen said Thursday his department is standing ready, if needed, to help in renewed negotiations in a Vancouver waterfront labor dispute.

Reds May Agree To Global Airways

LONDON (LST)—Russia is now believed to be prepared to help create a global airway system to enable both it and the western nations to operate airlines at supersonic speeds.

One consequence of the visit to Moscow by Julian Amery, British minister of civil aviation, is the understanding that Russia accepts that a high degree of co-operation with non-Communist aviation is part of the price of wanting to fly passengers faster than sound.

A senior ministry specialist, who accompanied Amery said:

"I think that the Russians would even be prepared to accept a ruling that there should be a single language only used by supersonic pilots—and that it could well be English."

The commandos landing in Cuba represented three of the member groups—Rescue (rescue), the Revolutionary Revolutionary Movement and the Christian Democratic Movement.

"This is the beginning of the liberation of Cuba," said Luis Botifoll, a council spokesman. Varona said the infiltrators were well armed.

Both nations are on the verge of agreement over sharing of weather data from satellites such as the U.S. Tiros, he said.

B.C. Wary of Boost

Provincial government officials kept their fingers crossed yesterday, hoping they haven't been trapped into paying a large share of the old-age-pension increase announced by Ottawa.

What is bothering them is that the federal government announced a flat $10-a-month increase in the basic pension to $75, but so far hasn't raised the means test limit which determines its share of the $24-a-month supplementary allowance.

If the limit is not increased to $90, the federal government would only share in a supplementary allowance of up to $14 a month, leaving it up to B.C. to pay all the additional money.

The federal government pays part of the provincial government's supplementary allowance of up to $24 a month to pensioners over 70, subject to an $80 limit—the $65 basic pension plus the maximum $24 supplementary allowance.

If B.C. didn't pay the federal share of the supplementary allowance, it would appear to be putting the basic increase into its own pocket and leaving some pensioners with approximately the same total income they had before.

Said a provincial spokesman, "There's no doubt everyone will get the $10. What government could refuse?"

"But it would be most unfair if Ottawa didn't raise its means test limit at the same time."

Cigarette-Makers Quitting Campuses

NEW YORK (AP)—Some major cigarette manufacturers have decided to discontinue advertising and promotion on United States college campuses, says George V. Allen, president of the Tobacco Institute.

Allen said Wednesday night the companies plan to stop taking ads in college newspapers, magazines and football programs, and give up distribution of sample packets on campus by student representatives.

The institute is made up of companies that make nearly 100 per cent of the cigarettes produced in the United States. Allen did not specify the number of firms involved.

On Wednesday, Florence (Ala.) State College banned all promotion of cigarettes on campus. The ban, announced by the college president, Dr. E. B. Norton, prohibits cigarette advertising in the student newspaper and other publications and outlaws any promotion of cigarettes, including distribution of free cigarettes and free playing cards and ash trays which advertise them.

AFTER 9

An announcement from Canadian tobacco manufacturers said Wednesday they had decided to shift their cigarette commercials on television to times after 9 p.m. The move is intended, the announcement said, to keep youngsters from getting the idea that smoking "is the thing to do."

Gordon Urged to Quit

Liberals celebrated "60 days of decision" but there was no jubilation in government ranks. The day opened with a spate of rumors that Mr. Gordon's resignation was imminent, prompting a flood of telephone queries to his office. The opposition MPs pounced on the minister at the opening of the Commons, peppering him with critical questions.

As many as 10 members were on their feet at one time with questions. Some had difficulty making themselves heard above the boisterous cross-fire of interjections. Conservative backbenchers kept shouting "repeal" at Mr. Gordon.

INQUIRY POSSIBLE

Mr. Pearson again told the Commons the government would order an inquiry if any evidence were brought forward to show that budget secrets had leaked out before the budget speech last Thursday night or before publication in government ranks. Mr. Gordon's announcement on the takeover tax Wednesday.

Terry Nugent (PC—Edmonton—Strathcona) argued that the purpose of such an inquiry would be precisely to uncover any evidence of a leak and to restore the confidence of the public.

QUESTION?

"The honorable member (Mr. Nugent) wants to convert the inquiry into an inquisition," retorted the prime minister.

Most of the opposition questions in the 90-minute question period were aimed at Mr. Gordon. He has been under heavy pressure since Friday when he disclosed that he had hired three Toronto businessmen to help him prepare the budget, with two remaining on the payroll of their investment houses.

Lovell Doubts Success

MANCHESTER, England (Reuters)—Sir Bernard Lovell, director of the giant Jodrell Bank radio telescope, said Wednesday that though the Russian space flights ended safely "it is difficult to avoid the conclusion that the original plan has not been fulfilled."

"Little further progress can have been made in the technique of rendezvous and, apart from the initiation of the space experiment on the girl, the duration of the flights have not significantly extended those of Vostok III and IV," he added.

Real Ones There

Fake Astronaut Night Club Flop

HOUSTON (AP)—There was a packed audience in a Houston night club June 13 when entertainer Milton Berle introduced a crew-cut young man as one of the U.S. astronauts.

That was what the young man had called himself for a month.

Sitting at a nearby table were four of the real astronauts and Lt. Col. John (Shorty) Powers, National Aeronautics and Space Administration public affairs officer.

They knew better. Today the young man, Jerry G. Tees, 28, is behind bars. "I was petrified," said Tees through the bars of the county jail. "I ran from the room but a guy dragged me out to meet Powers. Naturally, I had to tell him I was no astronaut."

Tees said in an interview that during the last 10 years he has also imitated doctors, businessmen and military officers. "I don't why I do it," he said. "I just live in a dream world, I guess."

Tees was arrested Tuesday after he posed for a month as "Lt. Cmdr. Jerry Clayton, a new navy astronaut." There is no such astronaut.

In his adopted role, Tees obtained credit at a cafe. He is charged with impersonating an officer for credit purposes. His bond was set at $5,000.

City Craft Makes Port

The Victoria fishing boat Marauder King, reported in trouble earlier Thursday off the island's west coast, is now safe in harbor at Bamfield. The vessel limped in on its own power after a U.S. Coast Guard ship helped repair a damaged hull fitting.

government provides more information when the resolutions are called for debate. Actual details must await introduction of the legislation after the resolution is passed.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE

In another move Thursday, the government gave the House notice that it wants to re-establish last session's special Commons committee on drugs and the hazards that pesticides and insecticides pose for food contamination.

Significantly, the government motion to study drug costs as well as drug safety. When in opposition, the Liberals tried unsuccessfully to include costs in last year's study—barely under way before halted by dissolution.

MUCH-TOUTED PLEDGE

Thus ended the much-touted 60 days. Prime Minister Pearson had said during the election campaign:

"Everything cannot be done at once. But I pledge that more constructive things will be done in the first 60 days of a new Liberal government than in any similar period since Confederation."

He repeated that statement often, and in nearly every instance it was in the context of the Liberals getting a majority in the House. Later in the campaign he at least once used the phrase "session of decision."

Thorough Pelvic Examination Can Detect Trouble Early

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Several of the women (and I imagine a great many more) would like you to write about pelvic examinations. We have all had hysterectomies.

Can a doctor tell by touch if there are any growths? (has they examine far enough? We feel we may be paying for an examination that isn't good enough.—L.E.)

Fibroid tumors or uncontrollable bleeding are the most frequent reasons for hysterectomy. Plus, of course, such cases as they involve cancer.

The pelvic structures are low enough in the abdomen so that the uterus, tubes and ovaries can be palpated (examined by touch) by "bimanual pelvic examination." That is, by use of the hands.

NOTHING LEFT

If all the structures — uterus, ovaries, tubes, cervix — have been removed by hysterectomy, there is nothing to feel.

If the uterus alone has been removed, any enlargement of the ovaries can be detected.

If the cervix remains, it should be inspected by instruments and by periodic "Pap smears," a simple method of detecting cancer.

I commend all of you for being wise enough to have a periodic post-operative examination. It catches trouble — if there is any more — early.

Doctors are aware of a woman's natural concern over this area, and also the extent to which examination should be made. The tests outlined above have proved to be effective protection, plus, of course, further ones which would be indicated if any symptoms appear, such as bleeding.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am an 18-year-old boy. I have a lump in my breast and it stays sore all the time. It changes from one side to the other. Could it be cancer, or what? Is it serious? —J.W.W.

If it moves around like that it isn't cancer. If it's sore, have your doctor examine it.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a polyp in my nose. I'm so nervous that I couldn't have a local anesthetic for its removal and the doctor says if I am put to sleep a tube would be inserted. I gag so easily I would hate for that to be done. Is it dangerous to leave the polyp alone? It doesn't bother me at all.—J.C.L.

Not likely "dangerous," but it can grow and interfere with your breathing or with drainage from the sinuses and thus invite congestion.

Chances are that it already is causing some interference even though you do not notice it; otherwise I wonder how the doctor discovered the polyp in the first place.

A local anesthetic is simpler and more economical than a general one (being "put to sleep"), and with the help of sedation you might be surprised to find that you aren't as nervous as you think.

If you do have a general anesthetic, I can almost guarantee that you will not have the trouble you fear with the tube. It is inserted gently and even people who have worried about gagging find it in place readily. You are worrying too much.

Dear Dr. Molner: Do stools that come out in the form of ribbons (flat instead of round) mean anything?—Mrs. G. S.

This can be caused by hemorrhoids, or some growth in the lower colon. It would be wise to have a checkup.

The Big Flop

THE prime minister's sixty days of decision have now run out and it will be left to posterity to assess whether Mr. Pearson has made good his boast that in those two months more constructive things would be done than in any other similar period in Canadian history.

Decisions have been made. The nuclear weapon has been accepted despite the popular vote in the last election was against it. New proposals to increase old-age pension payments have been promised and B.C. is apparently satisfied that progress is being made on the Columbia Treaty.

But the outstanding item of the 60 days has been the presentation of the national budget, and that is the one which puts the new government in its worst light.

It may be that Finance Minister Walter Gordon was unfairly pressed in being asked to do the job within 60 days, but the fact remains Mr. Gordon has proved a big flop.

As a minister he is a neophyte and he has acted as one. His naivety and disregard for parliamentary procedure can, at best, do no more than hang like a millstone round the neck of the new administration.

At worst, the minister has aroused disquiet by calling on members of the private investment industry to help him prepare his budget speech.

Somewhere in between these shades of criticism Mr. Gordon has bared the depth of his inexperience by having to abandon one of his principal proposals within a week of its introduction because he found it wasn't practical.

The crude method to prevent the sale of Canadian equities to foreigners by taxing the vendor on deals totalling $50,000 in one day was in direct contrast to the election platform of the Liberal Party that it would set out to improve Canada's international relations and to make Canada a haven in which foreign investors could repose a high measure of confidence and safety.

No other Canadian finance minister has had the temerity to regulate transfer of foreign capital to the degree that Mr. Gordon attempted in his futile 30 per cent tax proposal. This even provoked a rebuke from the New York Times which normally is friendly towards Canada.

When Mr. Pearson saw the damage being done by this budget proposal he, no doubt, encouraged Mr. Gordon to make a quick withdrawal, but here again inexperience prevailed for the finance minister should have known better than to make an important announcement of this kind in the final hour of stock market trading.

As the former finance minister, Mr. Nowlan, said in the Commons, it was presenting market insiders with an opportunity to make a killing.

But even if Mr. Gordon has removed one objectionable feature from his budget, he has still to face the fire being levelled against his proposals to make building materials and machinery liable to the 11 per cent federal sales tax—from which they have hitherto been exempt.

The construction and manufacturing industries believe that these measures will quickly slow down the tempo of the economy.

Although Mr. Gordon must now be more of a liability than an asset to Mr. Pearson, the prime minister has said he will not call for the resignation of his finance minister, but that the government will stand or fall in the Commons by the budget proposals.

In this Mr. Pearson no doubt hopes that at least one of the opposition parties will give him reluctant support rather than bring about a parliamentary defeat and the prospect of another general election. He might later get over his difficulty by switching Mr. Gordon to a less important cabinet position.

Double Benefit

A FEW days ago there was news of such disturbingly dirty, overcrowded and depressing conditions in two federal penitentiaries as to strike the conscience of every decent Canadian. For that, the contrast of a British Columbia plan to enable some prisoners to demonstrate their toughness—in the best sense—as trained forest fire "shock troops" is all the more welcome.

These volunteers, put through a rigorous course beginning in the fall at a camp now being built near Campbell River, will render a real service to the province both as firefighters and as searchers for persons lost in the woods, well equipped in both capacities through instruction and practice. By the same token they will also serve themselves well. They are bound to benefit greatly in self-respect alone, apart from physical and mental fitness, and it can be expected that many prisoners will value the opportunity.

Some perhaps will take the chance to escape; human impulse being such as it is, this may be inevitable. But under the circumstances these are likely to be so few as to cast no shadow at all on the value of the program, and it is to be hoped that the initial experience will lead to its extension.

Which Idiom?

THERE is high finance and low finance; a budget of millions and a traffic charge of but three dollars. As prime minister, Mr. Pearson is involved in both.

A Quebec businessman has dodged an RCMP summons for over-parking on Parliament Hill—because it is written in English. He will pay the fine but only in French—or otherwise willingly go to jail.

A small thing set against Mr. Gordon's imbrolio, but full of repercussions in view of Canadian sentiment. It must be conceded that the reluctant Quebecois has a point. His offence was committed on federal property, supervised by the RCMP, a federal force. The federal rule is that Canada is a bilingual country. National business on Parliament Hill is conducted in both English and French. Parliamentary reports contain both languages. Official federal documents recognize the duality.

The Quebec businessman is assessed for income tax in his own tongue; he will in fact redeem his parking ticket or pay his fine in dollar bills which, printed in both the official languages of his country, validate his argument that he deserves to be addressed in his native idiom.

This incident reflects one of the pinpricks which lead to the separatist movement in Quebec. There is reason for Mr. Pearson's promise to take the case in hand personally.

Thinking Aloud

By TOM TAYLOR

THE charms of a town are often, entirely so in fact, in the mind of the beholder. What he likes best—big-city bustle or an atmosphere of less-frantic tempo—determines his preference.

Apparently New Yorkers have been advised of the sedate segment Victoria is supposed to be, a reflection it is said of the Old World.

My own regard for Victoria rests in the physical setting and the still spacious flavor that pleases the senses. This environment governs the tempo, albeit the rush hour on Douglas Street of an evening banishes the idea of pastoral languor that seems to infect faraway writers.

Actually there are centres in the Old World as hectic as anything in the New World, and places on both sides of the Atlantic as peaceful as lovers of rusticity could wish.

The face of Victoria is currently changing, though, and to its advantage. New store fronts, new buildings, the introduction of color, fresh design and layout—these are transforming the civic scene. And it is the impact of downtown that visitors will take away with them.

This new look however is decidedly New World in character and not Old World.

I SUPPOSE the laziest linguists in the world are truly those whose mother tongue is English. Whether from an ingrained sense of superiority, false though it be, or from sheer lack of application, the thesaurus seems to be that people of other idioms should learn our language rather than that we should bestir ourselves to learn theirs. Mr. Howard Green, the former highly respected external affairs minister of this country, says that all of us should speak both English and French. In theory at least we should since this is officially a bilingual nation.

In practice the argument is not so sound, if only because in some areas, our own in Victoria, for instance, the need for French is not apparent and lack of use would soon make its familiarity rust on our tongues. Yet undoubtedly the acquisition of French would enrich the personal lives of many of us.

Mr. Green does not excuse himself, and cites himself as a sinner for his neglect, especially after 27 years in the Commons. I could count myself alongside him, and even as a private citizen with equal lack of excuse.

A READER wants to know something of the coat-of-arms imprinted on the fly of the Red Ensign.

One could recommend Irene Craig's informative "Flags and Formalities," which tells the story of the patriotic symbols of the Commonwealth family.

The fly symbol on the Red Ensign is the "shield" of the Armorial Bearings of Canada, containing the arms of England, Scotland, Ireland and France but "differenced" to give them a Canadian patina. This is effected by the planting of a sprig of maple leaves on a silver background in the lower third of the shield.

The arms in full include a red maple leaf held in the paw of the Crest Lion, and the Lion and Unicorn Supporters holding aloft respectively the Union Jack and the ancient banner of France.

This brief explanation might guide our reader to more fuller heraldic study.

The Profumo Scandal

SYMPATHY with Mr. Profumo's personal plight should not be allowed to obscure the fact that it raises in the mind of the beholder the question of what exactly are the moral standards which the British people can expect from their leaders in public life. The question is particularly difficult to answer because the British people themselves have no one standard of morality; some follow Christian standards, others are guided by convention, others rely on instinct.

When it comes to public moral standards the country is forced to fall back on Christian standards since no others have an equivalent prestige and clarity. But by no means all of Christian standards are imposed by the community; only certain of the more basic ones. One is that ministers and members are expected to tell the truth: especially on occasions when official ministerial statements demand a certain solemnity and significance to the proceedings.

There is universal agreement that by lying on such an occasion Mr. Profumo committed a grave moral misdemeanor which could be atoned for only by a complete forfeit of his political career. Men in public life are also expected to be honest: in 1949 the Sydney Stanley scandal rocked the Labor government. John Belcher, a Labor junior minister, who had accepted a few cheap presents from Sydney Stanley, was forced to resign. Jim Thomas had to quit the national government in 1936 after a budget leak which was suspected of benefiting certain individuals. The eighteenth-century system of patronage and piousness is definitely out.

What of sexual standards of morality? Highly elevated standards have never been imposed on British public figures: it should not be forgotten that it was Gladstone who said that he had known 13 prime ministers and of these 11 had been adulterers. Today when Christian standards in the community have been so deeply eroded they can no longer be imposed on men in public life.

The most obvious symbol of change is divorce. In the nineteenth century involvement in a divorce action did mean total exclusion from government. Parnell lost the leadership of the Irish Party after being named as co-respondent by Captain O'Shea, even though the O'Sheas had long been separated. It was the divorce which ruined him, not the adultery, which had long been known to Gladstone and others. Gladstone had even sent messages to Parnell c.o. Mrs. O'Shea.

In 1965 Sir Charles Dilke, then a member of the cabinet, was cited as co-respondent by Donald Crawford, who later himself became a member of the House. Dilke's guilt had always been in doubt; nevertheless Gladstone left Dilke out of his new cabinet and the man who had been widely tipped as a future foreign secretary never held office again.

Today divorce has lost its stigma. It continues to be condemned by both the Established and Roman Catholic Churches but their view has become a minority one, the majority of the country regarding it as a regrettable necessity. Britain has had a divorced prime minister and divorced ministers continue to hold office. It is true that Sir Anthony Eden was the innocent party in his divorce suit but it seems probable that even if a minister were a guilty party he would not be automatically debarred from office. All would depend on the circumstances of the case. A campaign might be mounted against him but that would be a different matter.

Public Life and Private Morals

By NORMAN ST. JOHN-STEVES from London

The twentieth-century public is not unsympathetic to sexual weakness which it recognizes as universal but it does expect its ministers and members to steer clear of the worst sexual offences.

Thus for a minister to have a relationship with a prostitute is no automatic bar to public office, but if it connects him with a circle of drug addicts, criminals, and foreign agents, then he is required to go.

It is possible to think of more marginal cases where a minister could give up office but retain his seat. Here local associations, whether Tory or Labor, have an important role to play. A popular member with good relations with his local officers might well survive the revelation of a compromising situation.

The next question is whether adequate machinery exists to keep politicians on the straight and narrow path. In the present case the whole matter was raised not by the press but in the Commons by three Opposition members, Mr. Wigg, Mr. Crossman and Mrs. Barbara Castle. On March 22 came the denial by Mr. Profumo and this was followed by a successful libel action against Paris Match on April 4 and against Tempo Illustrato on April 10. The British press, aware of the power of the libel laws, played a comparatively minor part in the affair.

Should these laws be relaxed in order to enable the press to act as public watchdogs and hound delinquent public figures? The answer must surely be negative since it is no part of the duty of the press to reveal the sexual weaknesses of individuals, private or public. These are only legitimate interests to the public when they are connected with some other matter of general interest, such as security in the Profumo case, and in these circumstances they can always be raised in Parliament under the shield of privilege. The press is then free under the same shield to report the whole incident.

To expect more from the press would expose sections of it to too great a temptation to exploit scurrilous and certain newspapers might well utilize the public appetite for sensationalism under the guise of advancing the public interest. These matters can be adequately and responsibly raised in Parliament where an Opposition party will always be on the lookout for any conduct prejudicial to the state.

Have public standards of morality suffered through the Profumo case? There is no evidence that they have. Indeed to some extent they have been upheld by the instant resignation of Mr. Profumo after his confession instead of attempting to cling to office.

The morale of the Tory party has sunk but that is not the same thing. Being a non-doctrinaire party, Tories expect more from their leaders: being the traditional governing party, the public expects a higher standard from them than from their opponents.

In the country as a whole the Profumo revelations have been greeted with more cynicism than indignation. Government popularity has declined but there is little sign of any desire for a root and branch moral reformation in English life. This would hardly be possible in the absence of any very defined moral views, outside of certain minority groups, in the country as a whole.

Mr. Profumo's head has rolled and after the smut and sensation of Dr. Ward's trial has died away interest in the whole case will rapidly decline. I can see no evidence that the Profumo incident will be a turning-point in the moral life of the nation. (Copyright, "The Observer" London, 1968)

East African Federation

Long Dream Near Reality

IN less than two months, the working party set up by the East African governments has the formidable task of drawing up a draft constitution which has been talked about for 50 years, but which has only approached reality in the past few weeks.

The proposed Federation of East Africa, which Dr. Julius Nyerere of Tanganyika, Mr. Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya and Mr. Milton Obote of Uganda recently gave their blessing, over its last final spurt to the momentum generated by the heads-of-states conference in Addis Ababa.

Ironically, an East African federation was a white man's idea at first, and because of this, Africans suspected it was a plot to extend Rhodesian white rule into Eastern Africa. Today, with white influence non-existent, even in Kenya, Africans realize that a federation would be the ideal solution, politically as well as economically. It would result in a single unit, extending over 680,000 square miles with a population, mainly African, of nearly 25 million people.

Since 1945, Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika have had an integrated railway system, common postal and telecommunications networks, and all research has been tackled on an inter-territorial basis. Civil aviation and meteorology were also conducted inter-territorially and common fiscal policy, including a customs union, has made the East African Common Market a reality so that, despite their earlier independence, neither Uganda nor Tanganyika wanted to leave Kenya and "go it alone."

What lies ahead is a political link-up, a development which will reveal a number of obstacles, although the general desire to achieve federation has the effect of minimizing these snags.

Apart from the economic advantages which a closely-integrated East Africa—roughly the size of Western Europe—presents to international investors and countries seeking trading possibilities, federation could provide a solution to some vexing territorial problems.

Chief of these is the Kenya-Somalia border dispute over the stretch of desert known as the Northern Frontier District which 100,000 Somalis are demanding, with a growing aggressiveness, be ceded to Somalia.

Now that Kenya has self-rule, the Somali Republic government in Mogadishu is anxious to avoid any open rupture with an African neighbor and it was significant that the Somali foreign minister, Mr. Abdullahi Issa, was present at the federation talks in the role of observer.

It is fairly certain that Somalia will apply for membership of the federation once it is a reality. Zanzibar will also probably join as soon as the elections are over next month. It is also expected that the tiny kingdoms of Rwanda and Burundi, neither viable in itself, will want to join. Last year the island Mauritius in the Indian Ocean expressed interest in joining, and it is hoped that Nyasaland and Northern Rhodesia will seek admission once the Central African Federation of the Rhodesias and Nyasaland breaks up. Ethiopia may also join in due course.

What about the snags? There are certainly several, and some of them will have to be overcome almost immediately if the federation is to get off to a good start. The chief stumbling block is Uganda, for although Premier Obote is as enthusiastic about federation as Dr. Nyerere and Mr. Kenyatta, Uganda is not only still linked with the British Crown, unlike Tanganyika, but has its own monarchies as well. The Kabaka of Buganda is extremely jealous of his power within his kingdom and fears that the federation could diminish his position. This is also the case in the other three Uganda kingdoms of Toro, Ankole and Bunyoro.

At present Mr. Obote's Uganda People's Congress Party rules only with the support of the Buganda political party, Kabaka Yekka, but the UPC is now trying to widen its support throughout the country to avoid depending upon the Kabaka's men for a majority in Parliament.

Meanwhile, Tanganyika is strongly advocating Arusha, in its Northern Province, as the site for the federal capital, although it lacks any kind of international air or cable communications which Nairobi, the Kenya capital, 150 miles to the north, has in plenty.

It looks as if Kenya, in order to get federation into being quickly, may have to make a number of sacrifices to appease the jealousies aroused in her neighbors by the rapid growth and size of Nairobi, until now regarded as the commercial capital of East Africa. (OFPS Copyright)

The Packback

MY Canadian accent has been amply laughed at at President Eisenhower's "Inn-arrested" and "guy-munt." It is with delight that on TV I hear Alan Pust referring to his "canid cay-mra." On the screen the other, evening, the newly appointed high commissioner from Britain was being interviewed in London prior to his departure for Canada, and he said his children were looking forward to "lots of snay-e."

By the time his children return home from their Canadian sojourn they will be calling it "me" to the chagrin of their kin.

One thing about the far-flung English-speaking world, there is diverting variety in it. So I am entitled, I believe, UNTIL something better comes along, the embattled Conservatives are hitting the Liberals where they think it might hurt worst—their attitude.

Daily—and it is becoming one of the sights and sounds on every tourist's "must" list for Parliament Hill—in the Commons you hear, in duet, the chant "Same Old Bunch."

As if they were carrying out a special assignment—and they might well be—two Conservative MPs, one from Quebec, the other from Alberta, Howard Graffey of Brasse-Misaisioui and Eldon Williams of Bow River, proceed through this ritual.

Both are possessed of good, strong, foghorn voices. They wait, picking their spot, until some member of the Liberal cabinet's front bench, preferably Prime Minister Pearson, State Secretary Pickersgill, External Affairs Minister Martin or Justice Minister Chevrier, refuses to reply to a question or even answer it grudgingly, and then let fly with "Same Old Bunch."

The idea, it has been explained, is to turn the parliamentary spotlight on what the Conservatives term Liberal "arrogance."

It is a variation on the old John Diefenbaker election campaign theme of ridicule of "Pick, Paul and Chev," the prime minister's three top lieutenants.

And to make sure that the always crowded public galleries get the point, there is a chorus of Conservative backbenchers who chant a background beat of "Grit Arrogance, Grit Arrogance, Grit Arrogance," when Williams and Graffey let go with the "Same Old Bunch."

Perhaps, to a Conservative, the very evident self-satisfaction of some of the Liberal cabinet could well appear to be arrogance.

The paradise of political power obviously is so sweet to Pickersgill—and he makes little effort to hide it—that he almost seems to wallow, vibrating with delight in the joy of it.

And that "Silver Fox," Chevrier, simply glows with the wonderful warmth of it.

Even professional diplomat Pearson can scarcely conceal his very apparent feeling of urbane well-being.

But to keep the political peace and prevent Opposition temper tantrums in the Commons during the always lively daily question period, the Liberals, almost as if walking on eggshells, pick their way carefully and politely through the prickly hour of cross-examination and endure, with benign smiles, the taunt of the "Same Old Bunch."

Perhaps the Conservatives can get the message across through the simple process of sheer repetition.

They hit the jackpot once before with just such a theme.

It built slowly at first. Initially, there was former C.D. "Trader" Howe's "What's a million?"

Then, after those horses had been discovered on the payroll at Petawawa and the defence department was accused of extravagance, there was his crack:

"If they want a gold-plated piano, then we'll give 'em a gold-plated piano."

Finally, as the image sharpened of Liberal "arrogance," the inarticulate Howe, in the midst of the political footwork of the pipeline, roared "Who's it stop?"

It got across then, and it toppled the Liberals from the throne they had occupied so comfortably and finally, in the last few years, so snugly, since 1935.

So far there have been no reasonable political casualties of those payroll horses driven from cover by the Conservatives, and the terrible-tempered "Trader" has long gone.

However, while hoping for something to turn up, the Tory duo of "Same Old Bunch," supported by the Conservative chorus of "Grit Arrogance," is becoming one of the star turns of this season's show on Parliament Hill.

'Lost Leader'

Browning Poem Ended Macmillan Career

By EDWIN BOWEN from London
Colonist European Correspondent

When President Kennedy arrives in Britain in a few days time to spend a night as guest of Prime Minister Macmillan, he will be met by a broken, defeated man, whose political career has already ended.

The appalling incompetence with which Macmillan handled the scandal about his War Minister, John Profumo, has wrecked his political career.

Macmillan has lost the confidence of his Conservative party and of all the big Conservative newspapers. For his political future, the only question today is whether he will quit in July, in August or in September.

At seven minutes past 10 o'clock on the evening of Monday, June 17, he stared at the four Members of Parliament who had re-entered the packed House of Commons chamber after they had counted their

The Noes Have It

Robert Chichester-Clerk, a Conservative member, held the small white paper with the verdict on Macmillan. It shook as he read out solemnly: "The Ayes to the Right—252. The Noes to the Left—321."

"The Noes have it," pronounced the Speaker.

Macmillan seemed near collapse. He had heard his political death sentence.

The formal question was only whether the House should adjourn. Formally, the government had won by 88 votes. But its usual majority is about 179 votes—and 27 Conservatives had deliberately abstained. This meant that Macmillan did not have to resign immediately, but must quit very soon.

He was in tears as he left the chamber. "Resign! Resign! Resign!" howled the Labourites—and the Conservatives' counter-demonstration was a weak and without conviction. Although many Conservatives waved to Macmillan, their waving was farewell rather than applause.

A Pitiful Figure

During Wilson's accusations, Macmillan often covered his deathly pale face with his hand. Several times he appeared to weep. Once he leaned his head very far back—and seemed about to faint. He was a pitiful figure.

But he recovered enough to answer Wilson for an hour. To defend his personal honor, Macmillan had to cast terrible doubts on his alertness, shrewdness, prudence, foresight and competence.

He had to admit that the osteopath Stephen Ward, now accused of running a call-girl racket, was considered a security risk by the security service already in August, 1961, because he was a close friend of the Soviet Naval attaché Eugene Ivanov.

According to Macmillan, his cabinet secretary Sir Norman Brook then advised Profumo to be careful with Ivanov. "But I was never told of that," said Macmillan.

Walked Into Trap

Wilson knew, of course, that this scandal would explode. He set Macmillan a clever, completely fair trap. With incredible incompetence, Macmillan and his government walked into it—no disaster.

Wilson knows that new revelations will come. He had ordered all Labor parliamentarians not to make new revelations now. If these revelations come later, the new public shock will be more valuable to the Labor party in its election battle.

The most dramatic speech of this historic debate came neither from Macmillan nor from Wilson, but from the Conservative, Nigel Birch, a former minister who resigned from Macmillan's government in 1956 because he disagreed on principle with its financial policy.

Birch, a wealthy man, stood behind Macmillan and demanded—calmly, suavely, with some bitter irony—that Macmillan should resign.

"I absolutely acquit the Prime Minister of dishonor," said Birch. "But on the question of competence and good

African Resolve Put Into Practice

By JIM PEAOCK

The reports from the International Labor Organization meetings in Geneva said delegations of 32 African nations announced they were leaving the conference to protect the continued presence of South Africa.

In coming months, similar reports are seen likely from the conferences of every international organization in which South Africa holds membership.

The 32 newly-independent African states bitterly oppose South Africa's apartheid policy and they are determined to hold up this policy to contempt at every opportunity and in every manner possible.

The Geneva action is seen as a first step following the meeting in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, in May at which the heads of the new African independent states resolved to make an all-out attack against the racial policies in South Africa. They seek to make South Africa an outcast.

There are reports that preparations are under way in Africa to carry out this campaign politically, economically and socially—even down to the individual South African tourist.

The tactic on the larger scale is to confront every international organization of which South Africa is a member with a choice between South Africa and the remainder of the African nations.

This fall, when the United Nations General Assembly meets in New York, the African delegation are expected to conduct the same type of manoeuvre they have carried out at the ILO meetings in Geneva. The same tactics are likely to be employed when the World Health Organization meets next May.

Some observers see the pressures being brought by the new African nations as a factor which could encourage the Negro within South Africa to employ more violence to crack the white man's rule.

First Gordon—Then Cuba

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market skidded downhill all day and only caught its breath at the close of moderately heavy trading.

In the shadow of Wednesday's dramatic 30-minute rise of nearly 12 points from a sharp decline, the industrial index sank 8.94 at 2 p.m. but advanced slightly to finish with a loss of 7.72.

Analysts felt Thursday's decline was partly due to a realization by investors that Wednesday's announced withdrawal by Finance Minister Gordon of a 30-per-cent sales tax on large blocks of shares in Canadian companies sold to foreign investors would be only temporary.

Algonia Steel, down more than two points in earlier trading, bounced back to advance 1/2 at the close.

Jitters Over Cuba

NEW YORK (AP) — Jitters over news of a landing in Cuba by revolutionaries upset the stock market temporarily Thursday but prices steadied and ended the session not much worse than mixed. Trading was heavy.

The initial news of landing was followed by a clarifying item which explained that commando forces had sneaked into the island to strengthen the underground.

Chrysler was the most active stock, showing a net loss of 1/2 at 65 1/2 on 182,300 shares.

Pearson Stand Fogs Market

By HARRY YOUNG
Columnist Business Editor

The statement by Prime Minister Pearson that his government is standing behind Finance Minister Gordon's budget proposals and that the withdrawal of the 30 per cent tax on stock export sales is only temporary hang like a fog blanket over the stock markets Thursday.

Until it is known how Mr. Gordon will reintroduce his proposal to tax sales of Canadian stocks to foreigners, investors are not expected to rush into new commitments, and plans to make new equity offerings are at a standstill.

Mr. Gordon's budget has hastened the summer doldrums, said one local dealer. "The market may have to drift lower yet to attract new buying."

Industry reports of slow-down in construction plans owing to the expansion of the federal sales tax to including building materials and machinery are also upsetting market confidence.

This is regarded as the budget proposal which could do most harm to the expansion of the economy.

CONTRACT AWARDED

British Columbia Forest Products Ltd. has awarded a sub-contract for its newsprint mill at Crofton to Canadian Comstock Co. Ltd.

The contract is for the mechanical and electrical installation for the groundwood mill, screen room, paper machine, roll finishing and auxiliary equipment. The work is to start immediately.

Crofton's newsprint mill is expected to go on production some time next year. Construction is on schedule.

MONEY SUPPLY EASY

The supply of short term money remained fairly plentiful this week and the government borrowed on its normal 91 days treasury bills at 3.22 per cent yield, up .03 per cent from the previous week.

GREYHOUND TO SPLIT

The directors of Greyhound Lines of Canada Ltd. have recommended the common shares of the company should be split two-for-one, and a meeting of shareholders has been called for July 30.

The plan is to pay 14 cents quarterly on the new shares, equivalent to 28 cents on the old shares which presently pay 25 cents quarterly.

OIL EXPORTS CUT

The oil refineries of the Puget Sound area of Washington are expected to take less Canadian crude in the second half of 1963 than they did in the first half.

The U.S. interior department estimates the daily rate to the Puget Sound will be 125,600 barrels a day. The average delivered in the first four months of this year was 135,600 barrels a day.

DROP FORECAST

The drop of 10,000 barrels a day was forecast by a department spokesman who said the refineries would bring in some crude from other areas "to achieve a proper mix."

Western Canadian oil has been providing the total requirements of the Puget Sound refineries for some time.

DROP REFLECTED

The drop in deliveries to the Puget Sound refineries in the second half of this year will be reflected in the operations of Trans Mountain Oil Pipeline which exclusively supplies them with Canadian oil.

Canadian oil exports to the U.S. east of the Rockies will remain little changed at 125,000 barrels a day compared with 126,000 barrels in the first four months of 1963.

The department said the new figures were set after discussion with Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp, and if Canada exceeded its export estimates it would be the basis of further talks between the two countries.

U.K. SELLS SHELL

The British government has announced it has sold 2,500,000 of its shares in Shell Oil Company of New York to the Royal Dutch-Shell group.

The market value of the shares is about $100,000,000. The treasury announced the proceeds would be reinvested in other dollar securities.

Supply Tax Will Stay

OTTAWA (CP) — For the third day in a row, Finance Minister Gordon told the Commons Thursday the government does not intend to withdraw its proposal to extend the 11 per cent federal sales tax to building materials.

Quotas for Wheat Advance Monday

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade Minister Sharp declined again Thursday to say whether Canada is being pressed by Red China for more generous wheat sale terms.

He told the Commons delivery quotas for Prairie wheat are being advanced to 12 bushels an acre effective Monday and that the quota for durum wheat — a softer variety — will be 15 bushels. New quotas will be set Aug. 1.

This means that most of the 220,000 Prairie wheat growers should be able to sell all the non-durum wheat they want.

Canada's Sales to U.S. Climb by Six Per Cent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Canadian exports to the United States in the first four months of this year were six per cent above the same period in 1962, the U.S. commerce department said Thursday.

U.S. exports to Canada were only two per cent above the 1962 level, but the balance of U.S.-Canadian trade was still in the United States' favor, the department said.

Canadian exports to the United States in January through April, 1963, totalled $1,162,000,000. U.S. exports to Canada in the four-month period totalled $1,226,000,000, the department said in its weekly magazine International Commerce.

U.S. exports to all countries in the four-month period were running at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $21,100,000,000, a gain of one per cent over the 1962 total for the same period, the department said.

U.S. imports from all countries were at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $16,500,000,000, also slight increase over 1962.

The favorable U.S. trade balance in the four-month period was at an annually adjusted rate of $4,600,000,000, about the same as in 1962.

Road Open Today

Access to Gold River Won

By ALEC MERRIMAN

The Gold River road is open for public access, starting at 6 tonight, and no advance arrangements are required to travel on it.

The Elk River Timber Company and the Tahsis Co. have completed arrangements to open the 120-mile round-trip road from Campbell River to Buttle Lake through Strathcona Park to Gold River during non-operating hours and during non-hazardous periods. During the week, Monday

BUS CONTINUES

Existing bus and freight services will continue. To protect the companies from liability a permit system has been established with permits available at no cost at the Elk River Co. gate at the foot of Upper Campbell-Buttle Lake and at the Gold River camp of the Tahsis Co.

MOORE DRIVE

Although the road starts at Campbell River, the access section will start at Upper Campbell-Buttle Lake because there already is public access to there. The 30 miles will take about one hour driving time.

Use of the road is being offered at no expense to the taxpayers, but users are advised to be prepared to make the complete 120-mile round trip self-contained... there is no accommodation, no gas facilities and no food obtainable en route.

LONG FIGHT

There you are. It was a long fight, but we have access. Now protect it. Behave yourselves. Be careful with fire. More and better access to more areas will follow.

Wind and Rugged Course Takes Toll in U.S. Open

By OSCAR FRELEY

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI)—Bob Gajda, a Detroit veteran who never won anything but a caddy championship, sprinted through morning sunshine to grab the first round lead in the U.S. Open golf championship Thursday and then relaxed as the field played the back nine blues.

All the big guns had a shot of the two under par 35-69 posted by the 46-year-old Gajda but when darkness finally closed in over the Country Club he was one shot in front of blond Jackie Cupit of Tyler, Tex.

Arnold Palmer was four strokes away with a two over par 37-73 and still very much in contention; Gary Player putted poorly in shooting a 35-38-74 and defending champion Jack Nicklaus—six shots over par after 11 holes—pounded out a five over par 38-37-76.

The back nine of the scorned course dubbed by the pros as "the Old Lady of Boylston Street" took its revenge on most of them, aided by afternoon showers and winds with gusts up to 30 miles per hour.

Former champion Julius Boros, Lionel Hebert, 28-year-old Davis Love of Charlotte, N.C., and Champagne Tony Leoni, who explained a five-hour round by saying "you have to find the ball before you can hit it"—came in with even par 71s to rank only two shots back, and at 72 came Wally Burkemo, Don January, Dean Refram and Paul Kelly.

SNEAD TOO

Stacked with Palmer at 73 came Canada's Al Balding, former British amateur champion Richard Davies, Jay Hebert and Art Wall, while at 74 with Player were Bobby Nichols, Bob Goalby, Bob Charles, former champions Ed

Furgol and Dick Mayer and old slammer Sammy Sneed. But in a long afternoon over the scraggly course with its clutching rough and postage stamp greens, it was the back nine which got the majority of them.

BETS PATTERN

Charles Knowles, first man off the tee, set the pattern with a 39-43-82. And the range of scores between the front and back nines was amazing. Cary Middlecoff, who has won the Open twice, went out in 36 and back in 44 for an 80. Doug Sanders was 37-40-77; Stan Leonard, 40-42-82; Nichols was out in 33 and back in 41 for a 74; Ed Furgol exactly the disguised name; Frank Boynton, 34 out and 40 back; Chick Harbert, 37-44-81; and Bob Goetz, 37-42-79.

DIFFERENT START

Nicklaus started his first round last year at Oakmont, where he tied and beat Palmer in a playoff, with three straight bogeys, catching the rough with each drive. On the seventh hole he went four over the card by three-putting from 40 feet and made the turn four over par with his gallery over par with his gallery having dwindled to a handful.

Standing on the 10th tee, burly Jack grinned ruefully: "Now would be a perfect time for a cloudburst to wash everything out."

GOT WORSE

But it got worse before it got better. He took a double bogey on the 44-5 yard par four 11th when he drove the rough, hit his second still in the rough and wound up three-putting.

His only birdie came finally on the 420-yard par four 15th, where he knocked in a 20-footer and exclaimed "what happened?"

Former champion Gene Littler, one of the favorites, was in good position for a run at the lead with an outgoing 35 but like so many others he came home with 40 blows for a 75.

Stuffy McGinnis
... dies in his sleep

—Ryan Bros.

Sports His Life
—And Monument

By JIM TAYLOR

Fred L. "Stuffy" McGinnis, who rebuilt a shattered life on a foundation of sports for others, is dead at 64.

McGinnis, who founded the Independent Athletic Association five years ago, died in his sleep early Thursday morning in his home at 2509 Government Street.

That home is also the IAA clubhouse, and on the walls of "Stuffy's" second-floor apartment is written the story of the organization that saved his life and became his life. Schedules and standings for softball, hockey, curling, bowling and basketball leagues hang on walls and even doors, tacked there hurriedly by a man who spent all his waking hours making sure the program ran smoothly.

Stuffy started IAA in 1958 with just a couple of softball bats and balls. Now there are 700 people in IAA sports, and Stuffy knew them all.

"I started it for people, not for athletes," he liked to say. "For people who weren't good enough to make the regular teams—just ordinary people who wanted to play ball."

With him in those early days were Keith Dorman, Jack Nelson and Dave Duncan. All of them admit that without Stuffy the IAA couldn't have gone on. Stuffy had his own version of that.

"Without IAA," he said, "I couldn't have gone on myself."

Stuffy McGinnis was an alcoholic. He liked to beat the bottle by the force of his own will and the help of his ever-present friends. Then he formed IAA, and from then on his life was full, rich, and busy.

"I never knew how close I was to the end of the line," he told a friend once. "No matter how much I do for IAA, I'll always be in debt." His friends would argue that one.

They'd point out that it was Stuffy who provided the streets funding sponsors for his teams; Stuffy who talked and worked to get a softball team from William Head Penitentiary to Victoria for an exhibition game against the RCMP, then made the team a part of his league, with games there every weekend; Stuffy who kept the standings, made the schedules and arranged for officials.

Stuffy and his widow, Jessie, lived on the pension—$145 a month, altogether. Mrs. McGinnis was content to stay in the background because her husband was happy, and she helped in any way she could. She washed all the uniforms, darned the socks, stitched the torn equipment.

"He worked at it every day but Saturday," Mrs. McGinnis said last night. "That was his day off—and he went to baseball games in the afternoon and the wrestling at night. Stuffy played baseball and loved it. It was his whole life."

"We hadn't much, but we had a awful lot of friends," she said. "Stuffy had friends, and they didn't forget him."

In 1959 he chipped in and sent him to the world series in Los Angeles. In 1961 they bought him a used car because he was wearing himself out doing IAA work. Last year they gave him about $90 in cash for Christmas—and he used it to help finance his hockey team.

Stuffy's proudest possession was a hand-made table, sent to him by the men of William Head.

Now Stuffy is gone, and some believe the organization won't survive without him.

"I'm afraid IAA will fold now," Duncan admits. "Without him it would never have lasted two days. The rest of us said we didn't have time. Stuffy made time."

But there's a reason why Duncan must be wrong.

Recently the IAA held a banquet for its 700 members, but Stuffy wasn't at the head table with the rest of the executive. He ate at the entrance to the hall, greeting everyone, making sure no one lacked anything.

"Keep me out of it, I've got people to look after," he told a reporter. "I'm not a head table guy."

That's why IAA mustn't die. Because it's a monument to a stubby little guy in a battered baseball cap, whose "people" always came first.

Last Rites

Prayers will be said at Hayward's funeral home tonight at 7:30 for Fred McGinnis. Requiem mass will be celebrated tomorrow morning at 9 in St. Andrew's Cathedral, with burial at Ross Bay Cemetery.

Wynn Tries for No. 300

CLEVELAND (CP)—Cleveland Indians have put Early Wynn on their active list and the 43-year-old right-hander will try for his 300th major league victory against Chicago White Sox tonight.

Three times last season, when he wore a Chicago White Sox uniform, Wynn tried in vain for the cherished 300th victory.

Only four of the 13 men who have reached or surpassed 300 victories have done it during the last 50 years. Warren Spahn of Milwaukee

Two Veterans In Spotlight

Stock cars race Saturday night at Western Speedway, and everybody will be watching Billy Foster and Bob Mawle.

The two veteran drivers came back to the track last week, and Foster took the first heat and main event while Mawle won a heat and finished third in the main. Both are returning in the same cars to tomorrow night.

Another feature will be a sports car race under sanction of Victoria Motor Sports Car Club.

Lowest tides of the year this weekend, so plan on clam digging, oyster gathering, beach exploring, low-water cave and bore-hole exploring, seaweed gathering and that trip to the marine gardens at Port Renfrew's Botanical Beach.

On Saturday low tide at Port Renfrew is 7:30 a.m. and Sunday 9:45 (1.5 feet). At Victoria low tide is 9:34 a.m. (1.3 feet) at least from Victoria to Botanical Beach, including a 4-hour hike.

At Sooke low tide Saturday is 9:04 a.m. (1.6 feet) and on Sunday 9:45 (1.8 feet). At Victoria low tide is 9:34 a.m. (1.3 feet) on Saturday and on Sunday 10:16 (1.4 feet).

At Fulford Harbor, which takes in Saanich Peninsula, Saturday's low is 11:10 (1.3 feet) and Sunday's low at 11:54 (1.4 feet).

Remember that butter clams must measure 2 1/2 inches across and little neck clams 1 1/2 inches across. Esquimalt Lagoon and Patricia Bay are two of the most popular clam-digging spots.

With the low tides, also come some of the highest tides of the summer season . . . and these long tides are not considered the best for fishing, although just now there are plenty of fish about and there should be some fair fishing almost anywhere.

Becher Bay was the hot spot last weekend. There were a number of boats off Becher Head Saturday morning waiting with flashlights for dawn to break. When the big ones started hitting old Nick broke loose. There were plenty of big ones boated and lots of broken tackle. Biggest was a 43-pounder by putter float fisherman George Gilbert.

At adjacent Secretary Island a commercial putter man is reported to have landed a 45-pounder and at Otter Point there were several big ones, up to 30 pounds, but fishing appeared slow.

At Pedder Bay there were also a few springs landed and some tackle broken, but in the main the best fishing was around Becher with the other places getting the crumbs.

Rocky Maymuth hooked a 43-pounder at Oak Bay at the weekend to capture the King Fisherman lead for these waters. Charlie Guilgiet has been hitting all sorts of big ones off Oak Bay, proving the big fish are there for those who know how to get them.

Conservation winds have been blowing off Sooke to Victoria waterfront all week, keeping most boats off the water. This could mean the fish have had time to move on, or that they have had time to school up to provide some fine weekend fishing, once the anglers find them.

Rhys Davis has been hitting into some good fishing off Active Pass for both good-sized springs and blues. He recommends his Super Strip-Teaser trolled very fast, about medium bucktail speed.

James Island and Saanichton Spit waters have been producing a few good fish.

Saanich Inlet, especially the Goldstream end, has been almost hot, with fish up to 36 pounds and many limit catches, on both deep wire lines and nylon lines with only a pound of weight. There have also been fair catches of jacksprings, bluebacks and coho grise in Saanich Inlet.

Northwest Bay to French Creek and Qualicum waters are providing some air blueback fishing and there has been some pretty good spring and blueback fishing off Qualicum Bay, Deep Bay, Hornby Island and Denman Island.

Cape Mudge waters in the Campbell River area are slowly picking up, for both springs and blues. First tyre has been caught, but it was most certainly a travelling fish passing by.

Freshwater fishing is where you find it. Bigger Lakes, like Cowichan, Comox, Lower and Upper Campbell and Butte are still best bets but some of the smaller lakes in the Nanaimo area are producing well.

Rain fishing with surface plugs is just coming in hot, on Prospect, Elk, Beaver, Quennell and St. Mary Lake.

West Indians Held to 64 Runs

Fiery Freddie Takes Five

LONDON (Reuters) — Fiery Freddie Trueman bowled England into an attacking position Thursday when he captured five West Indian wickets for 64 little West Indian had hit 73 in two hours, 40 minutes with nine fours. Then he bowled captain Frank Worrell at the same score.

At the close of the first day of the five-day match, the West Indies, which won the first Test, was 245 for 6 after having been 239 for 4 and looked to be getting well on top.

Trueman dramatically swung the game when he took the new ball 45 minutes before the close. He had Rohan Kanhai caught in the gully at 239 after the little West Indian had hit 73 in two hours, 40 minutes with nine fours. Then he bowled captain Frank Worrell at the same score.

Trueman was well supported by 35-year-old Derek Shackleton, the Hampshire pace bowler returning to Test cricket after 11 years.

Shackleton failed to get a wicket but bowled tirelessly, sending down 38 overs, of which 17 were maidens, for 75 runs.

County scores:
At Head—Essex 205; Hampshire 108 and 113 for 3.
At Oxford—Oxford University 108 and 99 for no wicket; Leicestershire 128 for 1 declared.
At Taunton—Somerset 220 for 7 declared; Pakistan Eagles 206 for 3.
At Trentford—Lancashire 140 and 120 for 6.
At Chesterfield—Derbyshire 130 and 39 for 1; Gloucestershire 120 for 4 declared.
At Walsley—Middlesex 274 for 4 declared; Nottinghamshire 200.
At Worcester—Cambridge University 108 for 3 declared and 6 for 2; Worcestershire 204.

Dinghy Race In Vancouver

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—The Intercollegiate Yacht Racing Association of North America has assigned its next dinghy championship to a Canadian site for the first time.

The three North American championships for 1964 were awarded to the Northwest Intercollegiate Yacht Racing Association. This organization plans to hold the dinghy racing championship for the Morse Trophy under the University of British Columbia's auspices in June.

Vancouver also will hold the Wood Trophy inter-district team racing finals, using peninsulas and Flying Dutchman Juniors.

The Foster Trophy, or single-handed championship, will be held by the University of Washington.

Sad Sam Jones Joins Cardinals

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League have sold veteran pitcher Sad Sam Jones to St. Louis Cardinals of the National League.

The 38-year-old righthander had posted a 5-2 won-lost record with the Leafs this season and had struck out 41 in 36 innings.

Twilight Alley Wins Ascot

ASCOT, England (AP)—Twilight Alley, owned by Lady Sasson and ridden by Lester Piggett, won the Ascot Gold Cup Thursday over French challengers Misti IV and Taine. The 6-to-4 betting favorite, was three lengths farther back in the third place.

It's Floyd First Then Loud-Mouth

NEW YORK (AP) — Sonny Liston says he has some unfinished business with Floyd Patterson and then he'll take care of Cassius Clay "and his big mouth."

"That boy is for me all right," said the world heavyweight champion in a telephone interview with writer Lester Bromberg of the New York World-Telegram and Sun Tuesday.

"But I got an agreement to fight Floyd Patterson again and that comes before anything else."

"Patterson was man enough to give me a chance for the title and he's got a return coming, which he'll get even though it's been held up a couple of times."

At a press conference, meanwhile, Patterson declined to make any prediction on the outcome of the fight except to declare: "I'm not going to get

Big Payoff In 'Big Q'

PORTLAND (AP)—A $2 wagering combination known as the Big Q paid off to the tune of $5,140.80 for an unidentified bettor at Portland Meadows race track Wednesday night.

In the Big Q, the bettor attempts to pick the first and second finishers in the last two races.

The lucky combination Wednesday was Red Ear Jr. and He's Quick in the eighth race and Case Card and Clear Act in the ninth race.

New Pole Vault Record in Works?

TORONTO (CP)—A new 150-foot runway has been installed in Varsity Stadium to give four of the world's best pole-vaulters room to get up steam when they compete in the Toronto International Games next Tuesday.

Dave Tork of West Virginia, who broke the world's indoor record at the Telegram-Maple Leaf Games here last January, vaulting 16 feet 2 1/2 inches, may be able to make good use of it. He has the longest approach run of all top vaulters.

Competing against Tork will be John Uelses, the United States marine who was the first to clear 16 feet. Ross Morris of California, a consistent 16-foot vaulter, and John Pennell of Louisiana, also consistently over 16 feet.

Representing Canada will be Vancouver's Bob Watson. "This is the best pole vault field ever to compete in Canada or anywhere else," said Ken Twigg, Canadian Amateur Athletic Union track and field chairman.

The world outdoor record in the pole vault is 16' 3 1/2", held by Pentti Nikula of Finland. There will also be a top field in the discus event, which will be marred only by the absence of Al Oerter of New York, world

Garden Notes

Showing and Sharing

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRESNO
This is a big day in the life of Victoria's gardening community, for the annual summer show of the Victoria Horticultural Society opens this afternoon in the Victoria Curling Rink for a two-day run.

The motto appearing on the letterhead of the Horticultural Society is unusually apt — "Show what you grow. Share what you know"—and the Society implements its motto with the spring garden festival, with its monthly newsletter to its members, and by its two seasonal flower shows. This is indeed showing and sharing.

The doors of the Victoria Curling Rink will be open from 2 p.m. to 10 p.m. today and from 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Saturday. Admission is 50 cents and children accompanied by adults are admitted free. There is a restaurant in the building where you can break your inspection tour and rest your feet while you take tea.

This is a big show, with 126 different classes covering all kinds of flowers, artistic arrangements, pot plants, Bonsai trees, fruits and vegetables. I am told the exhibits in the African violet class alone are well worth the admission price.

I imagine considerable interest will be shown in the Bonsai tree, new this year. These are actually forest trees, dwarfed by Japanese techniques and growing in pots with hardly more than a cupful of soil, gnarled and ancient-looking. Another unique display will be an exhibition of roses grown from seed by a local gardener and rose fancier.

Keep an eye open for the New Zealand flowering tree called Pohutakawa. This is indeed a rarity, for to the best of my knowledge, there are only two of these trees in the whole of Canada, both of them growing in the lieutenant-governor's garden in Victoria.

It has been most interesting to sit on the sidelines and watch the gradual development of interest in the art of floral arrangement. This is an art form open to anyone, with or without a green thumb, and in this year's summer show, there are no fewer than 18 competitive classes for flower arrangements, some of them open only to juniors under 10 years of age.

Speaking of flower shows, if any of my readers are planning a trip to Europe this year, a visit to the Hamburg International Horticultural Show is a must. This is an enormous affair, staged only once every 10 years and occupying 188 acres of gardens, halls, greenhouses and other displays. The last Hamburg show, in 1953, drew about 4,000,000 spectators, and this year's exhibit is expected to double the attendance.

The show runs for six months, from April 26 to Oct. 13, and those flower show organizers who know how difficult it is to keep exhibits fresh for even two or three days will have some understanding of the problems involved here. The Hamburg people—the Internationale Gartenbau-Ausstellung—have gotten around the difficulties by staging what amounts to six different seasonal shows, running continuously one into the other. Exhibits have been entered from California, Thailand, Malaysia, Brazil, New Zealand and India.

Some idea of the crowds expected can be realized by the fact the Hamburg authorities have rented the crack Orient cruise ship Orion from Britain to be moored in the harbor to serve as a floating hotel, accommodating more than 1,000 persons.

They Get Along Fine, Says JOHN CROSBY

French Do Without Phones

People Communicate In Old-Fashioned Way

PARIS—The French, you'll be astounded to learn, still get along fine without a telephone. France, one of the richest nations in the world, ranks sixteenth in the number of telephones per inhabitant, ranking behind Finland, New Zealand, and Luxembourg. Only nine out of 100 Frenchmen have a phone.

How do they communicate? The old-fashioned way. A system of relay couriers. One girl will tell another one on the way out to shop. "If you see Jeanine, tell her the party's at nine, and if she's not wearing her pink orrany, I'd like to borrow her pink shoes. Tell her she can have my blue handbag if she's wearing her black dress."

Well, the courier doesn't meet Jeanine, but she does see Chantal, who's a close friend of Jeanine's, and she passes the information on but with a few addenda: "Tell Jeanine, she really oughtn't to wear the pink because it's outside and she'll freeze and besides her blue goes better with her eyes. If she needs a handbag, I can let her have my gold one, but she'll have to have it back Thursday because I'm going to Cannes."

And so it goes. Jeanine not only gets a message. She gets advice, criticism, gossip about her friends' movements. The news gets edited, trimmed, enlarged, colored, and thoroughly humanized as it goes from hand to hand, or rather, mouth to mouth. It gets more interesting if less accurate, enlarging the sphere of human communication rather than contracting it.

The French complain about the difficulty of getting phones, but they really don't miss them. The French National Telephone Service conducted a survey on why people didn't have phones.

Seventy-six per cent said: "I don't need it." Yes, the French women said they didn't need phones, too.

Even when they have a phone, they like to use the old methods. "Tell Joe I'd like to see him, if you meet him." Of course, they could call him up—but it's too uncomplicated simply to pick up the phone. Of course, if one does meet Joe on the street, one says: "I'll call you."

One of the reasons for the French uneasiness with the telephone is that French telephones don't sound like anyone else's telephones. My English sounds like French on a French telephone. French sounds like Sanskrit spoken underwater.

Nowhere on earth do telephone messages get more garbled than in France. You come back to your hotel to find a message from M. Blerdach. One of the great French pastimes is to decode messages left for you while you're out to lunch.

Then again the French language is totally unfitted for the telephone. It can't convey the shrug, the rolling eye, the up-lifted palm. To talk French you need the whole body. That's why, to this day, 10 per cent of Frenchmen never use the telephone under any circumstances.

What a Performance!

Jane Fonda said no when director George Schaffner wanted to team her with father Henry Fonda and brother Peter in The Best Man. It's not that she is particularly allergic to her father; in fact they have been getting on better now than they have in years. "But it would embarrass me to act with him. He makes me feel like a little girl." All children who have left the parental nest will know what she means.

Jane Allyson is worrying her friends. . . Walt Disney is after George Gobel for his Winnie the Pooh full-length feature. As the voice only.

Rex Harrison didn't really have to worry about being in those ads with L.A. and Dick. He steals the picture anyway.

Stanley Baker hired a lot of native girl dancers for his Zulu picture in Africa. Before going into the hills, he every male member of his cast and crew a copy of the 1957 South Africa Act, which states that any foreigner romancing a native girl is subject to seven years in prison, and/or 10 strokes of the lash. Enough said.

Jane Powell's friends expect her to take the big step with Jim Fitzgerald. They are together a great deal, and have been since Jane's second reconciliation attempt with Pat Nerney failed.

Forrest Tucker has to postpone his western for Nat Holt. He will be doing The Music Man in Milwaukee.

Primitive Charm on Display

By INA D. D. UNTHOFF
Spanish Colonial Art, the current exhibition, is a collection of the arts and crafts of New Mexico which has been lent by the Spanish colonial department of the Museum of International Folk Arts, Santa Fe, N.M.

There is a distinctly religious feeling in the paintings on wooden panels—known as retablos—and in the figures in the round—sanctos de bulo—which have been carved in the soft native woods cottonwood and pine.

They have been covered with gesso and painted with tempera colors which the folk artists have made of native materials, iron oxide producing the reds and ochers and soot the varied blacks.

The figures possess a naive charm peculiarly their own. They are strongly primitive in feeling and execution and moving in their expression of simple faith.

Besides paintings and carvings, there are interesting embroideries and some hand-some weaving. In the embroidery the cocha stitch is used. The stitch was originally popular with the Chinese, who used silk, but this was too expensive for the craftsmen of New Mexico, who substituted wool.

This gives the embroideries the appearance of weaving as each long stitch is caught up at intervals by a short diagonal cross stitch.

In the weaving, there are some striking blankets and rugs. Rio Grande blankets, woven in one piece, come from the village of El Valle and hangings and coverlets come from Chimayo, where they are still being made.

This is not a major exhibition but it is one of rare charm. It will be on view until June 30.

Also on show are recent gifts to the permanent collection and loans from Mrs. Fred Pollard of San Francisco, including a 16th century Japanese scroll depicting a Buddhist priest holding the double thunderbolt in his hand.

This has particularly fine quality in the beauty of line, the richness of the blacks and the range of whites, which are placed in strong contrast to the dark areas of the painting.

Two small bronzes of the pre-Christian era, some examples of 15th century work in gold on iron and brass, and an album of Japanese paintings, The 36 Famous Poets, are from the same source.

Under the conditions of the purchase fund established by Mrs. Massey Gooden, rare specimens of Chinese art are to be obtained through A. E. Newberry from his own private collection, which is a notable one.

Latest additions to the gallery's permanent collection are a large Chinese pottery jar of the pre-Christian era, a rugged piece with simple glazing, a perfectly formed jar in the famous Ashes of Rose glaze from the early 18th century reign of Kang Hsi and a 17th century lacquer mirror stand in gold and black.

The last piece has been partly donated by Mr. Newberry.

Hard Hats Take the Fractures—Wearers Escape

Convincing proof of protection of hard hats is this group of fractured headgear. All of the men wearing these helmets were saved from serious injury, perhaps death. Since March, 1963, 21 men escaped injury through this precaution.

3,500 Qualified Attendants Safeguard B.C.'s Workers

More than 3,500 qualified industrial first aid attendants in B.C. are safeguarding the lives of loggers, miners, construction and other workers.

Trained by the St. John Ambulance, these attendants are certified only when they have met the standards of the Workmen's Compensation Board.

These high standards have resulted in the lowering of the infection rate accompanying in-ustrial accidents. First aid supervisor Frank Mottishaw of WCB in an address recently pointed out that in 1918 seven per cent of all work injuries reported resulted in infection.

This figure has been reduced to a half of one per cent.

There hasn't been a mine disaster in B.C. since 1946. One of the reasons is the high standard of preventive training, according to chief mines inspector J. W. Peck.

ARMIES NEEDED

But there are still emergencies requiring first aid treatment and the skills of mine rescue teams.

The annual competitions, being held at Memorial Arena Saturday, encourage the work of these trained men, Mr. Peck said.

PLANES LINK

An important link in the rescue picture is the airplane. Every year hundreds of B.C. residents owe their recovery from injury, and often their lives, to the co-operation and co-ordination of B.C.'s airlines.

About 100 emergency flights each year are arranged for by the WCB, arising out of accidents covered by the board.

Logging, mining, secondary industries and fishing, in that order, account for the bulk of the cases. Burns, eye injuries and serious fractures are among the most prevalent injuries requiring emergency flights.

B.C. CENTRE

The board's 24-hour emergency centre in Vancouver under supervisor David Laidlaw and assistants John Wormald and George Cartwright, has handled as many as three mercy flights in a weekend.

In all industrial accidents the company employing the injured workman is responsible for immediate first aid treatment and transfer to the nearest doctor.

DOCTOR DECISION

If the doctor decides that the accident victim requires specialist treatment, he contacts Dr. H. C. Powell, WCB medical aid officer. The Emergency Transportation Service then takes over and co-ordinates flight details, selection of carrier, attendant nurse or doctor, standby ambulance and notification of hospital to which the injured workman is to be admitted.

WCB estimates that 15 per cent of its flights are in the emergency category, where a life is at stake. The balance are classified as emergency mercy or simply mercy, where there is no immediate danger to life but specialist services are needed to give the accident victim the greatest opportunity for proper recovery.

FOUR LINES

Mercy missions have been flown by Pacific Western Airlines, B.C. Air Lines, Canadian Pacific Airlines and Island Airlines.

Busy Teams Compete

Treating simulated injuries, first aid teams are judged according to their methods, skill and speed in handling patients at annual award competition.

This year's contest will be held in Memorial Arena starting at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Totem Trophy Gets Polish

Polishing Totem Trophy, Joy Elmore, clerk in WCB head office, Vancouver, gets it ready for Provincial First Aid and Mine Rescue Competition at Memorial Arena Saturday. Six winning B.C. first aid teams will compete for this trophy.

President of Industrial First Aid Attendants' Association of B.C., Gus Porcher last fall announced merger with St. John Ambulance, who will carry out first aid training while IFAAA sponsors courses in timekeeping, safety, log scaling along with WCB seminars and conventions.

Frank Mottishaw, of Vancouver, is first aid supervisor for the Workmen's Compensation Board.

First Aid, Rescue Shown at Arena

Top first aid and mine rescue teams from across the province will be put through their paces at the annual Provincial First Aid and Mine Rescue Competition at Memorial Arena commencing at 9 a.m. Saturday.

The public is invited to watch the teams operate under simulated emergency conditions.

Competing teams already have proved their ability by winning their respective area competitions.

COMPETITORS

Competitors for the Totem Trophy in the first aid event are: Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd., Ladysmith Division (Vancouver Island Mine Safety Association); Naval Fire Service (Southern Vancouver Island).

Columbia Cellulose, Terrace Division (North Coast First Aid Association); Bralorne Pioneer Mines (Central B.C. MSA); Tadanac Engineering No. 1 (West Kootenay MSA) and Sullivan Mine No. 2 (East Kootenay MSA).

MINE RESCUE

Teams competing for the Mine Rescue Trophy are: Table River No. 2 (Vancouver Island MSA); Craigmount Mines (Central B.C. MSA); Bluebell No. 2 (West Kootenay MSA) and Mineral King Mine (East Kootenay MSA).

Competition is sponsored jointly by the Workmen's Compensation Board and the B.C. Department of Mines. Host for the competitions is Vancouver Island Mine Safety Association.

Admission is free.

Insecticides 'Only Help'

OTTAWA (CP) — Forestry Minister Nicholson last night defended insecticide spraying programs as the only method now available of saving vital forest stands from complete destruction. He said efforts were being made to reduce the hazard to fish and other wild life.

Highways Minister Gagliardi yesterday announced government approval of a "block loading" system for logging trucks which will relieve operators of having to estimate gross weights.

The new system goes into effect immediately and follows

Block Lumber Loading To Replace Estimates

more than a year of study by the highways department, the minister said.

Under the terms of the new regulation logging trucks can be loaded to a dimensional limit without regard to weight.

LIMITED LOADS

The limit permits loads up to 60 feet in length, 12½ feet high and eight feet wide.

Mr. Gagliardi said the new rule was sought by the trucking industry because of the difficulty of estimating loads at the point of lading.

An official of a Victoria trucking firm hailed the new regulation as a major step forward.

He said some of the firm's log trucks in the past could only carry about 75 per cent of the load they will be able to handle with block loading.

The plan will also allow quicker loading and, in the case of some firms, eliminate the need to weigh trucks on private scales at the place where they are loaded.

A commercial transport official said the move will aid enforcement authorities as well as truckers—particularly in parts of the province where no permanent highway scales have been installed.

In spite of dimensional loading, logging trucks will still be required to stop at highway weighing stations, the official explained.

Eight Settlers To Face Trial

KAPUSKASING, Ont. (CP) — The last eight of 19 settlers charged with non-capital murder have been committed for trial at their preliminary hearing. The other 11 charged in connection with the shooting deaths of three men were bound over to Supreme Court for trial. The shooting took place Feb. 11 when 400 striking bushworkers stormed a pulpwood stockpile area.

World's first space woman, Valentina Tereshkova, 26, and cosmic companion, Valery Bykovsky, 28, embrace at secret hideaway.

First Spacegirl Kisses Co-Hero

MOSCOW (AP) — Valentina Tereshkova, stuffed with potatoes and onions, hugged and kissed fellow cosmonaut Valery Bykovsky enthusiastically Thursday as they met at a secret hideaway for space travellers.

It was their first meeting since their record-breaking space flights.

CURLY HAIR

Her short, curly blonde hair blowing in the wind, history's first woman space flyer also embraced Communist party and scientific officials who met her at the de-briefing centre on the Volga River.

Miss Tereshkova made what the Soviet Union's space control centre called "a curious request" in her last broadcast before landing Wednesday after 48 orbits.

She wanted potatoes and onions.

"I have plenty to eat," she said, but I miss potatoes and onions which is my favorite dish."

Since she landed by parachute, enthusiastic fans of the space heroine have made sure she had plenty.

Both cosmonauts came down on widely-separated spots in central Asia three hours apart. He had completed 81 orbits.

FACE RALLY

The two flew to the hideaway from great celebrations of their feat—one for her in Karaganda, a Kazakh Republic coal mining centre, and his at Kustanay in the Kazakh virgin lands—en route to a huge Moscow rally Saturday.

Oak Bay High School

Student Wins Plaque

Jane Bowering, a Grade 12 student, was awarded the Kiwanis plaque for outstanding service to school and community during Oak Bay High School's awards day recently. Head of the graduating class was Kenneth Lane with a 90.1 per cent average.

Bruce Wallas, 89.61 per cent, topped Grade 11 students, and Judith Cameron, 95.1 per cent, led Grade 10 students.

A special presentation was made to retiring principal Charles Gibbard by John Edwards, president of the students' council. Presentation was a cheque for Mr. Gibbard to buy the fishing rod of his choice.

The Reginald Sinclair cup for rugby was presented to George Dufour, and Gaynor Vosburgh won the girls' sportsmanship trophy.

Donald Panton won the Acland Cup, and Patricia Daniel and John Edwards were winners of the Merit Cup and a $100 bursary from the school's parents' auxiliary.

Burnaby Man Appointed Prosecutor

A "long and arduous search" for a new city prosecutor ended yesterday with the announcement by Mayor R. B. Wilson that the post will be filled by 36-year-old Thomas Peter Birkett.

Since Nov. 1, 1961, Mr. Birkett has served as assistant prosecutor for Burnaby municipality. He graduated with a law degree from University of B.C. in 1959 after having worked for the department of transport in Ottawa for 10 years.
Mayor Wilson said "we feel we have rather an outstanding man. It's been a long and arduous search involving a lot of screening. Mr. Birkett comes very highly recommended."
The new prosecutor will take up his post—civil salary just under $10,000 a year—Aug. 1.

McGill's Gun Sets Record For Altitude

MONTREAL (CP) — Prof.
D. L. Mordell, dean of engineering at McGill University, said Wednesday McGill engineers set a world altitude record Monday for gun-fired probes into the upper atmosphere.
A projectile weighing about 375 pounds was fired from a 16-inch gun to an altitude of 300-000 feet—nearly 57 miles.
The previous record of 250,000 feet was set in 1962 by Dr.
Charles Murphy of the U.S. Ballistics Research Laboratory, Aberdeen, Md.

Visitor Sits for Portrait

Getting her portrait done in pastels by Victoria artist V.I. Polushin during B.C. Guild of Artists' exhibit at Causeway yesterday is Mrs. Doris Buckner of Tucson, Ariz., who is

Museum-Duplex Plan Surprise to Ireland

By TERRY HAMMOND

B.C. will reject the recommendation of a leading North American authority if it puts the provincial archives into the proposed new museum building slated for Victoria.

Works Minister W. N. Chant yesterday denied that reports that the two would be put under one roof had come from him.

"No decision has been made on that at all," he told the Colonist.

Was Surprised

Provincial Archivist Willard Ireland was surprised at the report and seemed less than enthusiastic at the prospect of a dual function building.

Premier Bennett is believed to favor a two-purpose structure and as finance minister he is likely to have the final say, but he was not available for comment.

If he orders the two placed together he will be flying in the face of the advice of the Guthe Report filed in 1962 and devoted to a study of B.C. museums and their future.

An Authority

The report was prepared for the B.C. Museums Association with the financial assistance of the Leon and Thea Koerner Foundation and drawn up by Dr. Carl Eugene Guthe.

It's preface states "when Dr. Guthe speaks of museums he speaks with an authority unequalled in North America." His report dealt specifically with the possibility of putting the provincial museum and the archives under a single roof.

... not enthusiastic

"The use of the phrase 'museum and archives building' should be stopped as quickly and as quietly as possible," he wrote bluntly.

Not Necessary

"It should be unnecessary to place two administrative units belonging to different departments in the same building."

"From a practical as well as an administrative standpoint, it would be very unwise to attempt to house these two governmental units in the same building."

Rain or Shine Summer's Here

The forecast may not stress the point (cloudy, showers, wind), but even the weatherman will have to admit, at 8:04 a.m. today, that summer is here.

At precisely that moment, rain or shine, spring will end officially and summer begin. The day, one of the year's longest, will see the sun rise (visible or not) at 5:11 a.m. and set at 9:19 p.m. for 16 hours, eight minutes of daylight.

'Return $80,000'

Casey & Co. Condemn Douglas Street Plan

By JACK FRY

Saanich council should repay the $80,000 spent by the Capital Improvement District Commission on the Saanich portion of the Douglas Street beautification project, and start doing what it wants in its own municipality, Coun. Joseph Casey said last night.

Then council could return parking to Douglas Street, veto a provincial highways department plan to prohibit left turns to and from Dupplin Road and Roderick Street, and look after its own business firms, which are being sacrificed to make the city's near-by Mayfair shopping centre a success, he said.

Then council could return parking to Douglas Street, veto a provincial highways department plan to prohibit left turns to and from Dupplin Road and Roderick Street, and look after its own business firms, which are being sacrificed to make the city's near-by Mayfair shopping centre a success, he said.

TIME TO DRAW LINE

Coun. Casey was backed last night by three other Saanich councillors who said it is time that council draws a line and stops allowing itself to be pushed around and dictated to by outside interests.

Coun. Robert Ostler said: "I am concerned if there is collusion between the CIDC and city" when decisions affecting property in the municipality are made "without consultation with Saanich officials."

FUSED AROUND

"I agree with the business people that Saanich council has been sitting back and letting ourselves be pushed around without fighting back in their behalf," he said, in calling for a stand to be taken against the proposed left turn ban.

Hardest hit by the proposed left turn restrictions would be nearly one dozen business firms clustered around Dupplin Road, which rely heavily upon customers from the city and from the streets opening onto Tealme Avenue.

AREA THREATENED

"The future of that area is finished if the 'no left turn' signs are put in," said Coun. Casey. "I think the merchants are getting a raw deal, and as far as I'm concerned those properties won't be worth a thing."

Coun. Ostler, chairman of the Saanich lands and planning committee, said that so far as he is concerned a study of future land uses for the land between Town and Country shopping centre and the new Mayfair shopping centre, referred back to his committee, should be postponed until the left turn issue is settled.

NO POINT IN STUDY

There is no point in studying land use at this time if there is a possibility that Roderick Street may be cut off as a main entry point, he said.

"I quite agree that council should fight this. We are being hamstrung in what we

'Give Up Son' Urges Dad

The father of a young Saanich man who escaped Thursday from the Haney Correctional Institute has asked the Colonist to appeal to his son to give himself up.

David Gene Wood, 21, of 7885 East Saanich Road, was serving a sentence of 10 months definite and four months indefinite for theft over $50.

CONVICTED IN MAY

He began his sentence May 17 after he was convicted of looting telephone boxes in Victoria and Saanich.

J. A. L. Wood, the young man's father, last night urged David to give himself up before he gets into more trouble.

"I know he hasn't got any money," said Mr. Wood, "and I'm afraid he might get into trouble trying to get some—he's done it before."

NEED MONEY

"I don't think he'll come to Vancouver Island," he said. "He'll probably head for Wainwright, Alta., where his brother-in-law lives. The trouble is, he'll need money to get there."

"I want to appeal to him to give himself up. If anyone knows where he is, they'd be doing him a favor to turn him in; he'll never get anywhere this way."

"He's my son. I want him to have a chance when he does get out."

Pay Up Or Lot Will Go

Oak Bay council says it will sell a school board-owned piece of property if back taxes aren't paid by 1964.

George Curran, chairman of the buildings and grounds committee of the Greater Victoria School Board, says council can't do it. But Oak Bay Reeve George Murdoch says Oak Bay's lawyer says it can.

The taxes, understood to amount to something like $120, were owing on the property when the board expropriated it from V. J. Casanave in June of 1962. The school board and Mr. Casanave have since both denied responsibility for payment.

Mr. Curran last night said provisions of the B.C. Schools Act would prevent council from selling the land without the board's consent.

Coun. Allan Cox, chairman of Oak Bay council's finance committee, last night said council would have to put the land up for tax sale if the taxes aren't paid two years after they were due.

Weird Band to Play At Berry Festival

Greater Victoria residents attending the Brentwood Bay Strawberry Festival Saturday will see one of the strangest musical bands ever formed on the Saanich Peninsula.

Included in the afternoon's entertainment will be the 12-member Kitchenaires Band playing instruments made up of such odd-ball household gadgets as shortening cup bongos drums and a laundry basket bass.

Conductor and one of the star performers of this strange band from the Women's auxiliary of the Sidney Canadian Legion will be 65-year-old Mrs. Elsie Bullough.

Crewmen from the Japanese training ship Kaiwo Maru will give karate and Japanese fencing demonstrations, and will bring an instrumental group and put on a display of folk dancing.

The second annual Brentwood Bay Strawberry Festival will be held at the corner of Wallace Drive and West Saanich Road at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Parking and admission are free. Proceeds from rides, games, contests and booths will be used for recreational purposes by the Brentwood Community Club, Cubs and Scouts, North Saanich Little League and Central Saanich volunteer fire department who jointly sponsor the event.

Also included in the entertainment will be a go-kart demonstration, a water fight by the firemen, the South Saanich schools band and a teen-age square dance display.

Strawberry shortcake will be served free during the strawberry dance in the community hall at 9:30 p.m. Saturday.

Work Starts On Marina

Blasting and excavation have started to prepare a site for the new Oak Bay Marina buildings.

The fuel float is to open this weekend, marina manager Robert Wright said last night.

He said target date for letting the main contract for construction is now June 28, and the restaurant and other operations in the new building are scheduled to open in the fall.

Court reporter Mrs. Barbara Bayles

Tape Will Succeed City Court Reporter

By BOB PETHICK

An attractive young woman who for the past four years has faithfully taken down millions of words of testimony in city magistrate's court will take her place in front of the bench for the last time, June 29.

Taking the place of Mrs. Barbara Bayles as court reporter when she leaves to settle down as a housewife and mother, will be $4,700 worth of tape recording equipment, and although this equipment has been found satisfactory in court use most of the people whose business brings them to court each day agree things will never be the same.

Mrs. Bayles took her training for stenographic work in Calcutta and worked in India and Australia before coming to Canada.

In Victoria she worked as a secretary taking time off every so often to have a family of four boys ranging from three to 12 years old.

She became interested in court reporting when employed in the attorney-general's department and worked and studied to bring her shorthand speed up to qualify.

Mrs. Bayles has no idea how many words of testimony she has taken down during her six-year career as a court reporter but points out in order to qualify a reporter must be able to copy at 200 words a minute.

An average magistrate's court session, lasts about an hour and a half and during trials can run a full day.

"I am surprised more people don't go in for court reporting," said Mrs. Bayles. "It's a well paid position. Maybe it's the amount of extra training and practice required that scares them off."

She regards the work as challenging and filled with human interest.

Of the many hours spent in jotting down other people's troubles for the record Mrs. Bayles found she could only think of a few humorous incidents that came to mind.

Once, she recalls, a member of the court audience whose head displayed a single rag and a daffodil, rose solemnly with the intention of presenting the magistrate with a coke bottle which contained a perfume-sprayed hyacinth. The incident was short-lived but long-remembered.

Another memory is the graphic description of a fight in which two members of a family described how they threw bricks at one another.

Her work has taken her to most of the courts. Probably the most fascinating she finds is family court although she says there is little to choose as she finds all courts interesting.

Immediate plans after retirement call for a trip to Melbourne, Australia, to visit her parents.

Somewhat it won't be quite the same listening to a tape recorder read back a question or an answer.

How to Be Very, Very Popular with Nurses— Be Unselfish, Undemanding, Good Looking!

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI) — The next time you're in hospital, here's how to have nurses consider you a "good" patient:

● Be co-operative, unselfish, friendly, understanding, intelligent, resourceful, courageous and possibly good looking.

■ If, by some chance, you can't be all these things while feeling ill, you're likely to have nurses get the impression you're a "difficult case" or a "bad patient."

The points about good and bad patients are made in a report in the current issue of Modern Hospital, a journal for hospital administrators.

Researcher Miriam Ritvo, of the Boston University Human Relations Centre, based her descriptions of "good" and "bad" patients on interviews with more than 1,600 people involved in nursing service.

"It is true that psychologists say a sick person is not really himself," Mrs. Ritvo said.

"But the facts of hospital human relations seem to point out that you as a patient may often be judged by the same criteria applied to a pleasant neighbor, a worthy member of the community or a socially successful guest at a cocktail party."

● Demanding, self-centred, unpleasant, of poor personality, unfriendly and unwilling to help himself.

"In other words," Mrs. Ritvo said, "his social behavior is bad. He seems to be expected by his nurses to subordinate his illness to the comfort of all concerned with his care."

The social scientist said survey results seem to suggest that nurses do not have training experiences which prepare them to recognize and react to all types of patient behavior in an understanding and non-judgmental fashion.

"They also showed a tendency to underestimate the frustrating effect of the denial of normal independence in the hospital situation," Mrs. Ritvo added.

She noted that nurses with more human relations training tended to say that there is no such person as a good or bad patient — since when they're sick, they're sick, and when they get better, they get better.

"It seemed clear from the survey," she said, "that one dividend from human relations training groups for nurses is an increased feeling for the uniqueness of each patient."

"A nurse with little sensitivity to this feeling of uniqueness may present a cold clinical air which will surely arouse strong resentment in the ill persons."

"Thus the patient suffers not only from his illness, but from a loss of personal identity."

One change Mrs. Ritvo recommended in hospital relationships:

● Remove the burden from the ill person of the need to be popular at a time when he may feel himself "least likely to succeed."

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My son, who is 29 years old, makes his home with me. He is attractive, well built, has an excellent professional rating, makes about $18,000 a year, and he has the first dime he ever earned. If I didn't throw out his old shoes and suits he'd wear them till they fell apart. He will not take out a girl because it costs money. He has invited a few girls to the house for dinner, but that's as far as he goes.

For Christmas, Mother's Day and my birthday he gives me a cheque, because according to him, "You can't beat money." I don't know how he got so dollar-crazy. His father was never like that, and heaven knows I am not.

He has few friends because he doesn't want to go any place that costs money. I am heart sick that he is missing out on so much that is worthwhile and interesting. He won't even take a trip, although I know he has $43,000 in the bank. What can I do? — HIS MOTHER.

Dear Mother: He needs professional help but of course he won't get it because it would cost something.

Ask him which relatives or charities he wants to leave his money to. Your question may jar him into realizing that if he doesn't enjoy his hard-earned loot, someone else will.

Dear Ann Landers: I can't sign my name to this because if the fellows ever heard I wrote to Ann Landers they would die laughing.

I had seven dates with a nice girl. We got along great, and she was a perfect lady. The other night a gang of us fellows were talking about girls, and there was plenty of bragging. I didn't want to be the only guy who didn't have something to brag about, so I said a few things about this girl which were not true.

Well, her best friend's brother was in the crowd, only I didn't dig the connection till later. He went back and blabbed everything. She passed the information on to the girl.

Yesterday at school the girl said she never wanted to see me again.

I am sick about this and want to square things. What can I do? — HATE MYSELF.

Dear Hate Yourself: You've had it, Buster, and it couldn't have happened to a bigger louse.

Your chances for squaring things are mighty slim, but go to each of the guys and admit you lied. The word may sift back to her and perhaps she'll forgive you.

Dear Ann Landers: I am going to a very important party in a few weeks' time with an awfully nice boy. I am worried about something, and if you could settle it I'm sure I would have peace of mind.

This boy who asked me isn't very sophisticated and I'm afraid he won't buy me a corsage. I will feel uncomfortable without one because all the girls expect it.

I have an artificial flower corsage which I could wear in case I don't get a live corsage.

Would this be right or wrong? — MISS IN QUESTION.

Dear Miss in Question: The artificial flower is out. If your date doesn't bring a corsage, say nothing and for heaven's sake don't allow it to spoil your good time. One measure of maturity is the ability to overlook things which are not important—and a good test is to ask this question, "Will it matter three months from now?"

'Always Be Gracious' Says TV Detective

By JULIE CLARK

"Always be gracious," Victor Jory was once told by a veteran actor. "You'll meet the same people going up as coming down."

As he recalled this bit of advice, Mr. Jory touched wood. "I don't think I'll come down now, but I have never been that high."

Perhaps Victor Jory was never a Clark Gable, as he says, but he certainly has appeared in a great many productions, including 500 plays, 10 of which were Broadway hits; 127 movies; numerous television appearances; and his own TV detective series, Manhunt.

His most recent film was The Miracle Worker, which won Oscars for Anne Bancroft and Patty Duke.

Mr. Jory, who was born in Dawson City, arrived in Vancouver Wednesday, aboard the P & O-Orient Liner Sa Orvola. Orvola sailed yesterday afternoon for Long Beach, and consequently Mr. Jory had little time to visit the city in which he spent much of his childhood. He is on his way home to Hollywood with his actress wife, after filming a travelogue of the Pacific.

But, this time Mr. Jory is behind the cameras. He and TV producer Bill Burrud have joined forces to film special hour-long travelogues. One, completed and ready for release in October, is called Caribe Adventure. The current one will not be seen until April.

"This is really nothing new to me. I've been directing off and on for 20 years. During shooting of Fugitive Kind, I started to fool around with cameras and even shot sequences in Susie Wong and El Cid.

"Of course this filming takes only 30 weeks of the year, but it combines an urge to travel and direct."

The rest of his time is taken up with acting, attending to a cattle ranch in Idaho and writing his own scripts for TV, films and Broadway. He has also written a few songs and gives lectures on the theatre.

Jory, now 59, adds: "I feel too good to think of retiring. That's a lot of nonsense!" Victor Jory moved to California with his parents when he was 11. There, he received acting training in the Pasadena Community Playhouse. Later, he returned to Vancouver to join his first professional stock company, the Royal Players, at the Empress Theatre. However, at this time his ambition was to be a boxer.

"I wasn't good enough, so I ended up on Broadway."

"I love Canada, but I have to go where the work is. It's possible I'll come back to live, but it's more probable that I'll be back for long vacations to fish," he said.

Asked about his Manhunt series, Mr. Jory replied, "It's the best money, what you can keep of it. We made $1 shows for the series. It was fun at first, but then they cut down the shooting time and the whole thing became too much of a grind. So I ended Manhunt myself."

"I prefer to guest star," he said. Among others, this coming season I'll appear in a Hitchcock thriller, a Dr. Kildare and Empire."

Commenting on the Liz Taylor-Richard Burton affair, Mr. Jory said bluntly, "The whole thing disgusts me. It's bad for my profession and takes any stature of dignity away from it. I've been married for 36 years, but who ever hears of that?"

"Anyone who carries on the way she does is nothing but a common tart."

"It's just stupid pride to demand as much money for a film as Liz did for Cleopatra."

Although Mr. Jory admires Richard Burton as an actor of the old school, he calls Liz a "competent manufactured actress."

One of the business "bad men," Victor Jory has been cast as the villain in 95 per cent of his films, he estimates. One wonders if all the "bad men" of Hollywood would be as friendly and honest as this one.

Beauty Parlor Gives Lunch—Fast Hair Set

By JILL ARLETT

It's an awful feeling to be around somebody a good 20 years older than you are—and not notice the difference.

Especially when you think you're looking just fine and the other person just looks younger. Hasn't that happened to you? Then you probably haven't been going to the beauty parlor my aunt went to the other day, and came back looking so much younger.

It's not surprising if you haven't been yet. They've only been open for three weeks, but already they're setting a new pace in hair cutting and styling. So maybe you'd better get caught up on the latest news:

Try this for a starter: Tear out the hair style you've been admiring in that magazine lately and bring it down to them. Just one hour later—your appointments are on the half hour and as soon as you walk in they're ready—you'll have a shampoo, trim, set and comb-out all done, with the style exactly the way you wanted it. Even the price is a bit of a shocker: just $2.25.

It takes such a short time for them to set your hair that you can even get it done on your lunch hour, "with lunch" at no extra cost.

As one of the operators told me, "We always serve our customers coffee, and if it's lunch time we'll whip up a sandwich for them. They can't just sit under the driers and starve to death!"

The reason for the extremely short time it takes for a set is due to a new type of hair drier which blows dry air onto your hair.

They are quite different from the ordinary drier—there is no sound, no hot-bulb-and-rod problem where you have to keep turning it down, and no feeling of wind whipping around your ears.

In fact you don't even have to wear a net—you can hear and speak without the usual shriek.

ing that can be heard clear across the shop.

Although expert styling and cutting has been a big hit here, their real specialty is permanent and body waves. And, because of the time cut down while you're under the drier, these people really have more time to give you exactly what you want.

One lady who had just had a body wave and was on her way home couldn't talk enough about it.

"I just can't believe there's no frizz!" she said wildly, running back and forth between two mirrors.

"They check you every minute, dear," she went on. "You don't just sit there and cook," she assured me. "There's no need to worry!"

Prices aren't much of a worry either. Here's a brief outline: A haircut and shampoo is $1.50 to $2, a tint (which includes a set) is $7, body waves are $15, and perms start as low as $10.50. And don't forget—the coffee's free.

Drop in and get up to date on the latest in hair styling, cutting, and permanents. EV 3-4111 is the number to call for the name of this store, which, by the way, is open both THURSDAY and FRIDAY NIGHTS until 9.

Garden Party July 6

Christ Church Cathedral Women's Parish Guild will hold its annual garden party July 6. Mrs. Waldo Skillings will open the affair at 2 p.m. Handmade articles, delicacies, baked goods and flowers will fill the various stalls. There will be a puppet show and games of skill. A fashion show of children's clothes from the Stork Shop and millinery show by Minnie Beveridge at 3 p.m. will be featured. Tea will be served in the afternoon in the Memorial Hall.

A new attraction this year will be a salmon barbecue and buffet supper from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. This will be followed by a floor show by the School of Theatrical Arts, and dancing in the gymnasium.

Mr. John Porteous is general convener. Mr. John Daniel is in charge of games. Mrs. Donald Mitchell is president of the Parish Guild.

Alumnae Tour Pender Island

Miss Myrtle Wilson and Miss Alice Auchterlonie of Hope Bay, North Pender Island, were recently co-hostesses to members of St. Joseph's School of Nursing Alumnae. A sight-seeing trip around the Island and luncheon were enjoyed by those present. The sum of $29.15 was donated to the recently established Sister Mary Anna Scholarship Fund. Those present were Sister Mary Peter, Sister Mary Justina, Sister Mary Doris, Mrs. W. McLaughan, Mrs. E. Corbett, Mrs. J. Welch, Mrs. H. Taylor, Mrs. H. Gundy, Mrs. W. C. Pollard, Mrs. G. Rose, Mrs. R. Kersey, Mrs. C. Lewis, Mrs. E. Stibbard, and the Misses N. Knox, N. Martin and G. Collins.

The engagement is announced of Miss Laurel Anne Imbeau, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Imbeau of Enderby, to Mr. William Ernest Richards, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Richards of Victoria. The wedding will take place June 28, at 7:30 p.m., in St. Andrew's United Church at Enderby. (Miss Imbeau's photo by Atlas Studio)

Only Five Chosen

TORONTO — Five of Canada's prettiest girls were chosen today as models for the women's division fashion show for the 1963 Canadian National Exhibition. There will be 15 fashion shows daily on the stage of the Queen Elizabeth Theatre this year during the Ex. The five lovely girls who were selected are: Ulla Moreland, Marianne Lenchak, Jean MacDonald, Lorraine Armstrong and Ene Riisan.

Winning Contract

Are greedy? Most people are, and their natural appetites have

Lawyers Ask Fiat Abolition

B.C. lawyers say citizens should be able to sue the government without first getting permission of the attorney-general.

School Sign-Up July 2, 3

Registration dates for summer school classes in Greater Victoria school district are July 2 and 3, district superintendent John Gough said last night.

The summer school will be held at Oak Bay Junior High School and registrations may be made there. Assembly will be held July 5 and classes will commence July 8, finishing Aug. 2.

The school board has also arranged for a summer band and orchestra school to be held July 8 to Aug. 2 at two centres: Victoria High School and S. J. Wilks Junior High School.

This is a voluntary program for students who pay a registration fee to make it self-supporting. Enrollment expected is some 420 students.

Top Priority Given To Rose Extension

City finance committee yesterday gave "top priority" to the proposed $100,000 extension of Rose Street to link up with Blanshard at Queen's Avenue.

Since the money wasn't available now, the committee agreed it should be left to city council to decide whether the project should be included in a capital borrowing program and at what time it should be submitted to a ratepayers' vote.

The committee recommended Victoria delegates to the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention in Dawson Creek this fall should not endorse a resolution calling on the provincial government to establish library cost sharing on a basis similar to that for education costs.

City manager C. C. Wyatt said if the resolution submitted by the B.C. Library Association was taken literally it would require the city to contribute 46 per cent of the capital costs of new branch libraries that may be established in surrounding municipalities.

He said correspondence with association officials indicated the resolution was "loosely worded" and should have indicated only that the province pay 50 per cent of capital costs of new library buildings.

Private Rites Arranged For CIL Man

Private funeral arrangements have been made for a former manager of the Canadian Industries Limited plant on James Island, Walter Thatcher, who died Wednesday at 73.

He had been ill for almost a year.

Mr. Thatcher was made manager of the James Island plant in 1935 and retired to Victoria in 1955. A CIL employee for some 40 years, he had been manager for the company at Nobel, Ont., before coming to Victoria.

Surviving are his widow, Muriel Louise, at home at 3044 Oakdowne; three daughters, Mrs. Roberta Little of Perry Sound, Ont., Mrs. Muriel Phillips of Seattle and Mrs. Betty Irwin of Westfield, N.J.; and seven grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements are being made by Hayward's Limited.

Teacher Dies In England

Edward William Tanner, a teacher at Oak Bay High School from 1926 to 1955, died recently in England. He was 76.

Born in Bristol, England, Mr. Tanner came to Canada in 1913. He returned to England in 1960.

He served with the Canadian Expeditionary Force in the First World War.

City Singer Gets Award

A Victoria man, William Steinson, son of Dr. and Mrs. S. W. Steinson, 3050 Oakdowne, was chosen to receive the $300 Canadian Women's Club of New York scholarship award given annually to a Canadian studying voice in New York. He will continue his studies at the Manhattan School of Music, where he is in his second year.

Bridge Results

Edith Clements and Jack Goldie took top honors in the 10-player Victoria Bridge Club mixed pairs championship. Valma Arnes and Tony Macdonald placed second in overall standings. Other winners:

1. Mr. and Mrs. F. Arlett; 2. Jeannette Waddington and Eric Rowwood; 3. Elsie Beck Warren and Leslie Bennett; 4. Phil Bagel and Otto Levenstam; 5. Mima Lomser and George Morgan.

Juvenile Plan Known Soon

The government will shortly make known what action it requires from municipalities under new juvenile and family court legislation, Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee was told yesterday.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said he had been informed the attorney-general's department was preparing a directive which would go out to municipalities by the end of June.

The intermunicipal committee decided to do nothing for the moment, but agreed a special meeting should be called by the chairman as soon as the government makes known its intentions.

WIDE POWERS The new legislation, passed at the last session, requires every municipality to provide juvenile and family court facilities, gives the province wide powers to appoint court officials and probation officers while requiring local authorities to foot the salary bill.

It will affect Esquimalt most in this area. Victoria, Saanich and Oak Bay have already banded together to provide a juvenile and family court. Esquimalt chose to stay out, but now will likely be forced to join the other municipalities in a single Greater Victoria court.

MEET OFFICIALS The intermunicipal committee will also meet Chamber of Commerce officials sometime in the near future to discuss choice of a project or projects to commemorate Canada's 100th birthday in 1967.

Meanwhile, it has asked member municipalities to each appoint two representatives to a special intermunicipal subcommittee set up to consider centennial projects.

City architect Roderick Clark told the committee there will probably be a return of approximately $1,000 from the $3,000 allocated for contingency items in the new juvenile detention home which is nearing completion.

The committee recommended four local councils share a $781.40 grant to Goodwill Industries covering taxes paid by the organization on two properties.

RADIO REPORTS The series of weekly radio reports by elected members of Greater Victoria councils will be discontinued for three months during the summer. The committee decided. It will resume Oct. 1.

A supermarket in your home

meet Ebenezer MacFreezer

What's your reason for freezin'? Better year-round nutrition? Greater meal-time variety? Culinary creativity — or sheer convenience? These are fine reasons. Fun reasons.

But just for a moment let's be canny. Let's look on the frugal side. With a freezer you buy in quantity — and save. You take advantage of volume discounts.

You save by stocking up on meats, fresh fruits and vegetables at low, in-season prices. And more again by cashing in on supermarket specials, on frozen food buys. By buying from your bakery thrift-shop. By doing exciting things to leftovers.

In short, you put the freeze on all your food costs — and still eat better than ever. Your appliance dealer is waiting to show you the latest models. Hur-r-r-ry!

Archer Report

No Comment Made By Police Union

Flat denial that the Victoria Police Union has said or suggested anything at all about the Archer report came yesterday from Const. Lorne Shandley, union president.

A report along these lines appearing in the afternoon paper,

Japanese Politician Choked Up

TOKYO (AP) — A 10-minute brawl broke out in a parliamentary committee meeting Thursday.

One Socialist choked Chairman Tadanori Nagayama, a member of the Liberal Democratic Party, with his own necktie. Nagayama fainted. Tables were broken and curtains torn down.

The Socialists attacked Nagayama when he declared the committee had approved five controversial bills and would forward them to the lower house.

Courtroom Parade

Stolen Goods Case Hearing Set Tuesday

A preliminary hearing for Adrian Roy, who is charged with possession of stolen goods will be held in Saanich magistrate's court Tuesday and Wednesday.

Roy was arrested after a combined RCMP and Saanich police raid on a Glen Lake Road home.

He has elected to be tried by judge and jury.

Thomas Carson, 2511 Maynard Street, who entered a plea of guilty at a previous court session on a charge of making and distributing obscene records, appeared in Saanich magistrate's court and was remanded until Tuesday at 2 p.m. for probation report and sentence.

A plea of not guilty on three charges under the Social Services Tax Act was entered by Robert Fleming, 3845 Cadboro Bay Road. He will appear in court at 2 p.m. July 4.

Crown prosecutor Kenneth Murphy was given credit for a "valiant effort" in his attempt to explain a situation to a plaintiff.

The trouble began when Mrs. S. D. Leeuwenburg, 3230 Wascana, took the stand. She was of Polish origin and had difficulty understanding English.

She complained a police dog, allegedly owned by Keith E. Wilson, 3266 Wascana, invaded her property, jumping over her fence and injuring her dog in fights.

After about 10 minutes of questioning, Mr. Murphy was unable to fix the date when the last incident had taken place

"must have been made of whole cloth," Const. Shandley said.

The union president denied categorically that the union was considering any such "counter proposals" to recommendations in the Archer report as:

Promotion of two sergeants to the rank of inspector.

Transfer of Patrol Insp. Ray Matland to assist Det. Insp. Charles Webb.

Promotion of Deputy Chief Harry Mercer to the post of chief constable instead of importing a chief from outside Victoria.

Individual members

"It may be," said Const. Shandley, "that individual members of the union, as individuals, may have mentioned something along these lines. It may be, too, that some of them feel the Archer assessments of officer personnel on the force were both unfair and hastily made.

"But, these were their individual reactions, and not those of the union as such.

"The union has not said anything at all up to the present about the report."

The Archer report had urged the city to employ an able police officer on a short-term basis to reorganize the Victoria force along recommended line within a short period of time.

Then the city should hire a permanent chief, Mr. Archer advised.

NOT CAPABLE

His report said specifically he did not think any man in the present police forces of Victoria, Saanich or Oak Bay capable of taking on the job of reorganization.

At present the police commissioner is looking for a successor to Chief Const. John Blackstock, who submitted his resignation, effective Dec. 31, a week ago yesterday.

Road Roller Runs Away

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — A runaway road roller with three small, screaming girls aboard rumbled on a collision course with a house Wednesday.

Ferenc Mike heard the row as he washed his car outside his home.

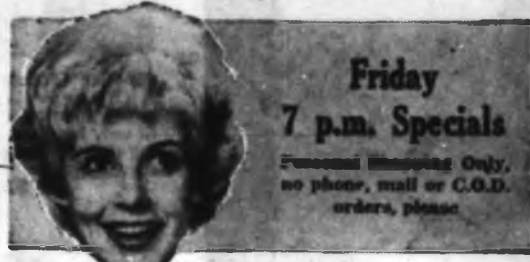

His new house was the target of the 25-ton runaway.

Mike jumped aboard and managed to knock the machine out of gear. When it stopped, its three young passengers fled.

Dick Was 'Joking'

Liz Silent on Marriage Reports

LONDON (UPI) — Actor Richard Burton said Thursday he was only joking when he told a London newspaperman he planned to marry Elizabeth Taylor.

Miss Taylor remained silent.

The two were interviewed separately on the set of a new picture which Burton is making. Miss Taylor, who is not in the picture, looked on with amusement Thursday as Burton went through a scene in which he finds King Henry IV in bed with a French courtesan.

The Daily Sketch Wednesday quoted Miss Taylor and Burton as saying they would marry as soon as they were able. Then Richard Handley, Liz's secretary, said the report was "fully correct."

"What actually happened was this," said Burton. "The newspaperman asked me, 'Is it true you both are getting married?' and I said, 'Yes, we are.' Then I added, 'But not to each other.'"

"It seems one must not make jokes on this subject."

The Sketch had quoted Burton as saying: "I want to marry Elizabeth and I will marry her."

Cleopatra Raises $1,094,403!

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Hollywood premiere of Cleopatra raised a record $1,094,403 Wednesday night for Los Angeles' new Music Centre for the Performing Arts. One benefactor paid $100,000 for his seat.

The Daily Sketch Wednesday quoted Miss Taylor and Burton as saying they would marry as soon as they were able. Then Richard Handley, Liz's secretary, said the report was "fully correct."

Russia U.S. Toast Hot Line

GENEVA (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union have signed an agreement setting up a hot-line circuit to keep constant contact between Moscow and Washington and help prevent an accidental war.

President Kennedy hailed the accord signed Thursday as a move towards arms control and said the line is "a first step to help reduce the risk of war occurring by accident or miscalculation."

FAST-MOVING EVENTS

"This age of fast-moving events requires quick, dependable communication in time of emergency," Kennedy said in a statement issued at Charleston, W.Va., where he attended a state centennial celebration.

In Geneva, Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin said he hoped the world will live in peace "so that the hot line never be used."

CHAMPAGNE TOASTS

U.S. negotiator Charles C. S. and Tsarapkin drank champagne toasts after they put their signatures to the accord in the palace of nations.

The line, expected to go into operation within two months, will use existing cable circuits from Washington via London, Copenhagen, Stockholm and Helsinki to Moscow.

IN PENTAGON

The Washington terminal will be in the Pentagon's National Command Centre. Operational responsibility has been given to the U.S. defence communications agency. The Moscow terminal will be in the Kremlin.

The line of the 4,800-mile cable circuit costing $100,000 a year will be shared by the two governments, with the U.S. paying the larger share.

RADIO CIRCUIT

A radio circuit from Washington to Moscow via Tangier will serve as backup to the cable and help maintenance work. The cost of the radio circuit, $85,000 a year, will be shared equally by the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

Transmissions will be by coded and scrambled signals. Washington will generally transmit in English and Moscow in Russian but either language may be used in both directions.

RELATED PROMPTLY

All messages passed over the line will be relayed "immediately and promptly" to the heads of government, as informed source said.

The two sides took no action on repeated hints from the British government that it would like to be hooked into the hot line "in due course."

Reds May Agree To Global Airways

LONDON (UPI) — Russia is now believed to be prepared to help create a global airway system to enable both it and the western nations to operate airplanes at supersonic speeds.

One consequence of the visit to Moscow by Julian Amery, British minister of civil aviation, is the understanding that Russia accepts that a high degree of co-operation with non-Communist aviation is part of the price of wanting to fly passengers faster than sound.

A senior ministry specialist, who accompanied Amery said: "I think that the Russians would even be prepared to accept a ruling that there should be a single language only used by supersonic pilots — and that it could well be English."

Space Unity Near?

WASHINGTON (EAP) — Dr. Hugh Dryden, deputy director of the space agency, predicted Thursday that the United States and the Soviet Union may eventually co-operate in manned space flight.

Both nations are on the verge of agreement over sharing of weather data from satellites such as the U.S. Tiros, he said.

Columbia Pact

Canada-U.S. Talks Will Resume Soon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S.-Canadian negotiations on the controversial Columbia River treaty are likely to begin within the next two weeks in Ottawa, informed sources said Thursday.

The talks would follow up discussions earlier this month between Canadian Prime Minister Pearson and British Columbia Premier Bennett on changes that Canada will seek in the treaty.

U.S. sources said they expected no great difficulties over changes except for the question of the price the United States would be willing to pay for Canadian power.

KEY ISSUES

Key issues in holding up ratification of the pact had been: (1) British Columbia's desire to sell to the United States its share on the "downstream benefits" created by dams provided for in the treaty, and (2) negotiations over the price the United States would be willing to pay.

INFILTRATION ONLY

Later the council's co-ordinator, Manuel Antonio de Varona, clarified that it was an infiltration movement.

Council members refused to say where the communists started, where they landed, how many were involved and if more were on the way. Other exile sources estimated that 500 men had gone ashore so far.

The council originally was formed, with United States help for the purpose of launching the Bay of Pigs invasion April 17, 1961.

The commandos landing in Cuba represented three of the member groups—Rescue (revue), the Revolutionary Recovery Movement and the Christian Democratic Movement.

"This is the beginning of the liberation of Cuba," said Luis Bofill, a council spokesman. A Varona said the infiltrators were well armed.

Ship Open To Public At Weekend

Four-masted Japanese training ship Kake Maru tied up at Ogden Point Thursday after a 30-day crossing here from Yokohama. She will be open to the public from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday, and calls Sunday for Vancouver. (Bud Kinsman)

Cuban Rebel Forces 'Invade' Homeland

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The once-shattered Cuban Revolutionary Council bounced back into the limelight Thursday with an announcement that it had sneaked commando forces into Cuba to begin a war that would "definitely" liberate the island from Communist rule.

For several days, the council said, "perfectly-armed" fighters have been landing in small groups at several points and merging with the underground. It added that they received a cheerful welcome and help from farmers in the landing areas.

STORMED BEACHES

First reports indicated that invaders had stormed the beaches, and the news caught Washington by surprise. A spokesman said the state department knew of no large-scale invasion and would know of one if one had occurred.

White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said he had no comment on the council's announcement.

Negroes Give Word City Gives Lights

PLAQUEMINE, La. (AP) — City officials turned on the lights at a hall park here so Negroes could practice for a demonstration. Police Chief Dennis Soggy said Negro leaders promised to advise him "a day or so" prior to a planned demonstration. The city, in turn, extended the courtesy of turning on the lights at the hall park for a practice session Wednesday night. (See also Page 2.)

Labor Scores Heavily In Byelection

Labor's victory was a foregone conclusion, but the drop in Conservative votes, from 12,956 to 3,996 was considered significant.

Ottawa Ready In Dock Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister MacEachen said Thursday his department is standing ready, if needed, to help in renewed negotiations in a Vancouver waterfront labor dispute.

Foreign Control: $1,300 Per Man

OTTAWA (CP) — Foreign investment in Canada amounts to about $1,300 for every man, woman and child in the country, Jack Davis, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, said in the Commons Thursday night.

He said the new Liberal budget has faced up to the "substantial reality" of foreign ownership and control.

Mr. Davis, an economist and MP for Coast-Capilano riding in British Columbia, also said he would like to see Canada make a "tax haven" for industrial research and development, with earnings from such activities free of tax for "a substantial number of years."

This would keep more Canadians from moving to other countries, help the growth and efficiency of Canadian industry, and assist Canadians to buy back control of their economy.

Mr. Davis said the book value of foreign investment in Canada is an estimated $25,000,000,000 and the real value is considerably higher. It would take almost the whole of a year's national production to buy it back.

Minor Parties Press But Avoid Showdown

COLIN CAMERON
... passed up chance

OTTAWA (CP) — Gilles Greigore, Social Credit financial critic, formally called on Finance Minister Gordon to resign Thursday as the storm of controversy swirling around the new Liberal minister continued to grow.

However, both Mr. Greigore and Colin Cameron, New Democratic party financial critic, passed up their chances to introduce motions of non-confidence in the government as the budget debate entered its second day in the Commons.

REINTRODUCED:

Meanwhile, Mr. Gordon indicated that the controversial 30-per-cent "takeover" tax on large-scale Canadian stock sales to foreign investors, which he said Wednesday was being withdrawn, may not be reintroduced.

Under persistent opposition questioning, the minister said that whether there will be another tax resolution on foreign takeovers "depends on government policy" and on whether administrative difficulties can be resolved.

DUTY TO RESIGN

Mr. Greigore said the minister has a duty to resign "if he has any decency" because he bowed to pressure from financiers in withdrawing the takeover tax announced in last week's budget.

Mr. Cameron said the government is in "hopeless disarray" and presenting "a ludicrous spectacle to the world."

"For heavens sake, pull yourself together," he shouted at the Liberal benches.

CRUCIAL VOTE

The life of the minority Liberal government was again at stake with a crucial vote of confidence set for Monday. The members will vote on a Progressive Conservative non-confidence motion criticizing Mr. Gordon for "failing to maintain the constitutional practice of the essential secrecy of the budget," and weakening public confidence.

The motion was presented Wednesday by Conservative financial critic George Nowlan, who blasted Mr. Gordon for "stupid procedures" in announcing suspension of the takeover tax while stock exchanges were still open. Mr. Nowlan suggested that "fortune" were made as a result.

TIMING INEXHAUSTIBLE

Thursday Opposition Leader Diefenbaker called the timing "entirely inexcusable and unwarranted."

Mr. Gordon said the government thought the decision "should be announced as early as possible."

Prime Minister Pearson came to Mr. Gordon's defence Thursday by saying after a morning cabinet meeting that there is no question of Mr. Gordon resigning. Mr. Pearson told reporters any House censure motion against the finance minister would be treated as a challenge of non-confidence to the government.

Pearson, Expert Linked

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Eldon Woodlams said in the Commons Thursday night that the wife of the head of Harris and Partners, Toronto investment house from which the government borrowed a finance expert to help prepare the budget, is a first cousin of Prime Minister Pearson.

He charged that in engaging the expert, Finance Minister Gordon committed an indiscretion that affected not only his position but that of Mr. Pearson. He strongly implied that Mr. Gordon should resign.

FIRST COUSIN

Mr. Woodlams, speaking in the budget debate, said W.C. Harris of Harris and Partners is married to Ethel Bowles, a first cousin of the prime minister.

An expert on municipal finance employed by Harris and Partners, M. P. O'Connell, is one of three outside experts brought in by Mr. Gordon.

NO DIRECT CALL

The Conservative member for Bow River, while refraining from a direct call for Mr. Gordon's resignation, cited examples of chancellors of the exchequer resigning in Britain for compromising the secrets of the budget.

Among these he mentioned the case of Laborite Hugh Dalton, who submitted his resignation in 1947 after giving some hint to a newspaper man of what was in the budget.

Jack Davis (L-Coast-Capilano), speaking after Mr. Woodlams, said some of the newer members of the Commons are dismayed at "the cynical attitude to the basic integrity and intelligence" of other members.

B.C. Wary of Boost

Provincial government officials kept their fingers crossed yesterday, hoping they haven't been trapped into paying a large share of the old-age-pension increase announced by Ottawa.

What is bothering them is that the federal government announced a flat $10-a-month increase in the basic pension to $75, but so far hasn't raised the means test limit which determines its share of the $24-a-month supplementary allowance.

If the limit is not increased to $80, the federal government would only share in a supplementary allowance of up to $14 a month, leaving it up to B.C. to pay all the additional money.

The federal government pays part of the provincial government's supplementary allowance of up to $24 a month to pensioners over 70, subject to an $80 limit—the $85 basic pension plus the maximum $24 supplementary allowance.

If B.C. didn't pay the federal share of the supplementary allowance, it would appear to be putting the basic increase into its own pocket and leaving some pensioners with approximately the same total income they had before.

Said a provincial spokesman, "There's no doubt everyone will get the $10. What government could refuse?"

"But it would be most unfair if Ottawa didn't raise its means test limit at the same time."

Insecticides 'Only Help'

OTTAWA (CP) — Forestry Minister Nicholson last night defended insecticide spraying programs as the only method now available of saving vital forest stands from complete destruction. He said efforts were being made to reduce the hazard to fish and other wild life.

Highways Minister Gagliardi yesterday announced government approval of a "block loading" system for logging trucks which will relieve operators of having to estimate gross weights.

The new system goes into effect immediately and follows

more than a year of study by the highways department, the minister said.

LIMITED LOADS

The limit permits loads up to 60 feet in length, 12½ feet high and eight feet wide.

Mr. Gagliardi said the new rule was sought by the trucking industry because of the difficulty of estimating loads at the point of loading.

An official of a Victoria trucking firm hailed the new regulation as a major step forward.

He said some of the firm's log trucks in the past could only carry about 75 per cent of the load they will be able to handle with block loading.

The plan will also allow quicker loading and, in the case of some firms, eliminate the need to weigh trucks on private scales at the place where they are loaded.

A commercial transport official said the move will aid enforcement authorities as well as truckers—particularly in parts of the province where no permanent highway scales have been installed.

In spite of dimensional loading, logging trucks will still be required to stop at highway weighing stations, the official explained.

Eight Settlers To Face Trial

KAPUSKASING, Ont. (CP) — The last eight of 19 settlers charged with non-capital murder have been committed for trial at their preliminary hearing.

The other 11 charged in connection with the shooting deaths of three men were bound over to Supreme Court for trial.

The shooting took place Feb. 11 when 400 striking busworkers stormed a pulpwood stockpile area.

First Spacegirl Kisses Co-Hero

MOSCOW (AP) — Valentina Tereshkova, stuffed with potatoes and onions, hugged and kissed fellow cosmonaut Valery Bykovsky enthusiastically Thursday as they met at a secret hideaway for space travelers.

It was their first meeting since their record-breaking space flights.

CURLY HAIR

Her short, curly blonde hair blowing in the wind, history's first woman space flyer also embraced Communist party and scientific officials who met her at the de-briefing centre on the Volga River.

Miss Tereshkova made what the Soviet Union's space control centre called "a curious request" in her last broadcast before landing Wednesday after 48 orbits.

She wanted potatoes and onions.

"I have plenty to eat," she said, but I miss potatoes and onions which is my favorite dish."

Since she landed by parachute, enthusiastic fans of the space heroine have made sure she had plenty.

Both cosmonauts came down on widely-separated spots in central Asia three hours apart. He had completed 31 orbits.

FACE RALLY

The two flew to the hideaway from great celebrations of their feat—one for her in Karaganda, a Kazakh Republic coal mining centre, and his at Kustanay in the Kazakh virgin lands en route to a huge Moscow rally Saturday.

Oak Bay High School

Student Wins Plaque

Jane Bowering, a Grade 12 student, was awarded the Kiwanis plaque for outstanding service to school and community during Oak Bay High School's awards day recently.

Head of the graduating class was Kenneth Lane with a 90.1 per cent average.

Bruce Wallas, 89.61 per cent, topped Grade 11 students, and Judith Cameron, 95.1 per cent, led Grade 10 students.

A special presentation was made to retiring principal Charles Gibbard by John Edwards, president of the students' council. Presentation was a cheque for Mr. Gibbard to buy the fishing rod of his choice.

The Reginald Sinclair cup for rugby was presented to George Dufour, and Gaynor Vosburgh won the girls' sportsmanship trophy.

Donald Panten won the Acland Cup, and Patricia Daniel and John Edwards were winners of the Merit Cup and a $100 bursary from the school's parents' auxiliary.

Swim Classes Deadline Soon

Deadline for applications for The Daily Colonist free swim classes is 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Greater Victoria or Duncan area youngsters, aged 8 to 14, who want to learn to swim or improve their present ability, MUST have their applications in at the Colonist office by that time.

Swim classes for Victoria start July 2 at Hamsterley Beach, and for Duncan July 3 at Queen Margaret's School.

Victoria beginners will attend Mondays and Wednesdays at Hamsterley, while those who can swim at least 15 to 20 strokes, or 40 feet, will have their classes Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Duncan classes will be held only on Fridays, but there will be six sessions each time: the first four each morning for swimmers; the last two for beginners.

Museum-Duplex Plan Surprise to Ireland

By TERRY HAMMOND

B.C. will reject the recommendation of a leading North American authority if it puts the provincial archives into the proposed new museum building slated for Victoria.

Works Minister W. N. Chant yesterday denied that reports the two would be put under one roof had come from him.

"No decision has been made on that at all," he told the Colonist.

Was Surprised

Provincial Archivist Willard Ireland was surprised at the report and seemed less than enthusiastic at the prospect of a dual function building.

Premier Bennett is believed to favor a two-purpose structure and as finance minister he is likely to have the final say, but he was not available for comment.

If he orders the two placed together he will be flying in the face of the advice of the Guthe Report filed in 1962 and devoted to a study of B.C. museums and their future.

An Authority

The report was prepared for the B.C. Museums Association with the financial assistance of the Leon and Thera Koerner Foundation and drawn up by Dr. Carl Eugene Guthe.

It's preface states "when Dr. Guthe speaks of museums he speaks with an authority unequalled in North America."

His report dealt specifically with the possibility of putting

... not enthusiastic

the provincial museum and the archives under a single roof.

"The use of the phrase 'museum and archives building' should be stopped as quickly and as quietly as possible," he wrote bluntly.

Not Necessary

"It should be unnecessary to place two administrative units belonging to different departments in the same building."

"From a practical as well as an administrative standpoint, it would be very unwise to attempt to house these two governmental units in the same building."

He said the museum and the archives should each compute how much space they require. "Once this figure is established it will be obvious that the museum and the archives will each need a large building."

Word Underlined

The word "each" was boldly underlined.

Dr. Guthe said if the museum and archives simply continued to carry out their present programs their collections can be expected to double in a single generation.

He recommended that in the case of the museum a new building be designed so it can be expanded either horizontally or vertically.

He termed the present museum building in the east wing of the legislative buildings as "inadequate" and "inappropriate."

Ideal Project

Premier Bennett said recently the proposed new museum building would make an ideal B.C. project for Canada's centenary, which would mean completion in 1967 and the possibility of federal participation in the capital cost.

Planning of the new building is only now getting into high gear.

Soil tests are being conducted on a proposed site for it at the corner of Douglas and Belleville streets where the government currently operates a 350-car parking lot for civil servants.

Intended Site

Mr. Chant said yesterday the parking lot was the "intended site" but has not been made final.

An inter-departmental committee concerned with the design of the structure held its first meeting this week.

Mr. Chant said present thinking is to make the new building compatible with the architecture of the adjacent legislative buildings but not necessarily copied from them. The building will be set well back from the street in order to provide space for gardens, he stated.

Council Split On $25,000 Machine

NORTH COWICHAN—Whether or not to buy a $25,000 tracked loader split council Wednesday and Coun. Mrs. Elaine Dobbins recommended to table Coun. Tony Staples' purchase proposal until further expert advice had been gathered.

Councillors Staples and Gerry Smith voted against the motion which was supported by the other three council members. Reeve Donald Morton opposed Coun. Staples on the grounds the municipal public works supervisor, Perry Ross, advised against the purchase.

Hired For Advice

The reeve felt the council should rely on Mr. Ross as he had been hired to provide council with advice in technical matters. He said two of his main principles are to be very conservative in spending taxpayers money and never to make a decision in technical questions without consulting with experts.

Reeve Morton felt if in this case Mr. Ross' recommendation was not good enough for the council another independent authority should be called in.

The reeve said in his opinion the big machine would be of limited use and would not justify the expense. The municipality's provision for equipment was $45,000 and if the $25,000 tracked loader should be bought the equipment by-law would have to be rescinded.

Coun. Staples told council the purchase of the machine would not alter the expenditure.

DIFFICULT ISSUE
Said Reeve Morton: "It is going to be an extremely difficult issue and in my opinion, if I mishandle it, it might result in one of us leaving the council."

Residents at Crofton are not only facing a water shortage but also a frog invasion as a water level drop swamped tadpoles into toilets there.

Plagued by a similar water shortage are Maple Bay residents and Coun. Staples announced drastic steps have to be taken against careless users who fail to obey the sprinkling regulations.

The proposal to establish a furniture factory in North Cowichan was brought to the attention of the council when Karl Schutz offered to buy 14

Duncan Projects

Chamber Faces Road Issues

DUNCAN—Two of the main issues facing the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce directors continually are signs and the improvement of Lake Cowichan Road.

The former consists of two projects. A directional sign is wanted at the intersection of Trunk Road and the Trans-Canada Highway and the department of highways will be approached to install an overhead sign there indicating the direction of the downtown Duncan area.

SECOND PROJECT

The second project, a billboard advertising this district, was tackled by the retail merchants' committee which will decide either to repaint or to move it to another location.

Commenting on the Lake Cowichan Road problem, roads committee chairman Herb Doman said his committee will talk to highways officials at Victoria following the latter's reply on what is planned to improve that road. The department's answer is expected soon.

Bitterly complaining about poor road conditions in the Shawmigan Lake area, president Dennis Hurley said motorists are becoming extremely annoyed with the oil recently laid but not covered with sand.

CAR GRAVEYARDS

Another letter to the highways department will express the local chamber's opposition toward "automobile graveyards" along the highway. The Chamber here recently brought

Trustees Start New Fight

NANAIMO—Another battle between school trustees and the highway department has developed in Nanaimo.

While Dan Campbell, MLA for Comox, was reassuring mothers of children attending Mount Benson School that an overpass would be constructed at the intersection of Jingle Pot Road and the Island Highway, trustees of School District 68 Wednesday night were embarking on another battle.

AVENUE CLOSURE

The board had requested that Howard Avenue be closed off so that the playground on one side of Harewood School could be incorporated into one area.

The board Wednesday night received a letter from the highways department suggesting a fence at both sides of Howard with a supervised crosswalk as an alternative to blocking off the street.

DOUBLE TALK

"This is merely double talk," said trustee Allan Luck. "We should demand a reason."

Mr. Luck said the reply from the department was neither complete nor comprehensible.

Tape Will Succeed City Court Reporter

By BOB PETHICK

An attractive young woman who for the past four years has faithfully taken down millions of words of testimony in city magistrate's court will take her place in front of the bench for the last time, June 29.

Taking the place of Mrs. Barbara Bayles as court reporter when she leaves to settle down as a housewife and mother, will be $1,700 worth of tape recording equipment and although this equipment has been found satisfactory in court use most of the people whose business brings them to court each day agree things will never be the same.

Mrs. Bayles took her training for stenographic work in Calcutta and worked in India and Australia before coming to Canada.

In Victoria she worked as a secretary taking time off every so often to have a family of four boys ranging from three to 12 years old.

She became interested in court reporting when employed in the attorney-general's department and worked and studied to bring her shorthand speed up to qualify.

Mrs. Bayles has no idea how many words of testimony she has taken down during her six-year career as a court reporter but points out in order to qualify a reporter must be able to copy at 200 words a minute.

An average magistrate's court session, lasts about an hour and a half and during trials can run a full day.

"I am surprised more people don't go in for court reporting," said Mrs. Bayles. "It's a well paid position. Maybe its the amount of extra training and practice required that scares them off."

She regards the work as challenging and filled with human interest.

Of the many hours spent in jotting down other people's troubles for the record Mrs. Bayles found she could only think of a few humorous incidents that came to mind.

Once, she recalls, a member of the court audience whose head displayed a single rag and a daffodil, rose solemnly with the intention of presenting the magistrate with a coke bottle which contained a perfume-sprayed hyacinth. The incident was short-lived but long-remembered.

Another memory is the graphic description of a fight in which two members of a family described how they threw bricks at one another.

Her work has taken her to most of the courts. Probably the most fascinating she finds is family court although she says there is little to choose as the finds all courts interesting.

Immediate plans after retirement call for a trip to Melbourne, Australia, to visit her parents.

Bakery Damaged By Stubborn Fire

DUNCAN—Billowing smoke Thursday evening rolled above members of the Duncan fire brigade, battling a stubborn blaze at the City Bakery, Kenneth and Craig Streets.

Bakery owner Janesen Steenberg said the fire started in a pile of dry wood behind the baking oven. He lives in an apartment above the bakery with his wife.

Mr. Steenberg said he ran down and "found the rear of the baking room engulfed in flames."

Duncan Fire Chief George Sanderson said the fire crept between two walls to apartments above, spreading to the next building. B.C. Hydro officials, whose office adjoins the bakery, saved files and office equipment from the water seeping through the ceiling.

Chief Sanderson estimated damage at more than $5,000.

Cooling Showers Restore Normal Logging

(From Correspondents) Fairly general heavy showers and a return to cooler temperatures Thursday were good news to loggers all over Vancouver Island.

Hot, dry days beginning June 12 had raised the fire hazard in the forests to a point where several hundred loggers had been put out of work, and others sent on early shifts. Yesterday, or in some cases today, those starting work at 4 a.m. were back on normal hours, and operations closed down by the fire threat were beginning to work again. In the Cowichan Valley and Cowichan Lake areas about 700 men were out of work when operators decided to close down rather than risk forest fires. Included were men of Hillcrest Lumber Co. at Mesachie Lake; B. C. Forest Products Ltd. at Cayuse; Comox Logging at Nitinat; Western Forest Industries at Meads Creek and Gordon River; Mayo Lumber at Robertson River and small operators. MacMillan, Blodell & Powell River men at Copper Canyon went on early shift as did some other operations in the area.

In the Alberni Valley MacPowell loggers were on early shift for four or five days through the start of this week, but rains cooled the district yesterday.

In the Nanaimo region humidity had dropped below saturation and rain yesterday will put things back to normal.

NANAIMO—Trustees of School District 68 were jolted Thursday when they learned that the electricity bills for these schools had increased by about 50 per cent.

The increase affected Woodlands, Barby and Nanaimo Senior Secondary School.

The district pays about $10,000 annually on light and power.

What's your reason for freezing? Better year-round nutrition? Greater meal-time variety? Culinary creativity - or sheer convenience? These are fine reasons. Fun reasons.

But just for a moment let's be canny. Let's look on the frugal side. With a freezer you buy in quantity - and save. You take advantage of volume discounts.

You save by stocking up on meats, fresh fruits and vegetables at low, in-season prices. And more again by cashing in on supermarket specials, on frozen food buys. By buying from your bakery thrift-shop. By doing exciting things to leftovers.

In short, you put the freeze on all your food costs - and still eat better than ever. Your appliance dealer is waiting to show you the latest models. Hur-r-r-ry!

Pact Signed

Russia, U.S. Toast Hot Line

GENEVA (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union have signed an agreement setting up a hot-line circuit to keep constant contact between Moscow and Washington and help prevent an accidental war.

President Kennedy hailed the accord signed Thursday as a move towards arms control and said the line is "a first step to help reduce the risk of war occurring by accident or miscalculation."

FAST-MOVING EVENTS

"This age of fast-moving events requires quick, dependable communication in time of emergency," Kennedy said in a statement issued at Charleston, W.Va., where he attended a state centennial celebration.

In Geneva, Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin said he hoped the world will live in peace "so that the hot line need never be used."

CHAMPAGNE TOASTS

U.S. negotiator Charles C. Stille and Tsarapkin drank champagne toasts after they put their signatures to the accord in the palace of nations.

The line, expected to go into operation within two months, will use existing cable circuits from Washington via London, Copenhagen, Stockholm and Helsinki to Moscow.

IN PENTAGON

The Washington terminal will be in the Pentagon's National Command Centre. Operational responsibility has been given to the U.S. defence communications agency. The Moscow terminal will be in the Kremlin.

The lease of the 4,883-mile cable circuit costing $108,000 a year will be shared by the two governments, with the U.S. paying the larger share.

RADIO CIRCUIT

A radio circuit from Washington to Moscow via Tanciter will serve as backup to the cable and help maintenance work. The cost of the radio circuit, $81,000 a year, will be shared equally by the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

TRANSMISSIONS

Transmissions will be by coded and scrambled signals. Washington will generally transmit in English and Moscow in Russian but either language may be used in both directions.

RELAYED PROMPTLY

All messages passed over the line will be relayed "immediately and promptly" to the heads of government, an informed source said.

The two sides took no action on repeated hints from the British government that it would like to be hooked into the hot line "in due course."

Columbia Treaty

Canada-U.S. Talks Will Resume Soon

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S.-Canadian negotiations on the controversial Columbia River treaty are likely to begin within the next two weeks in Ottawa, informed sources said Thursday.

The talks would follow up discussions earlier this month between Canadian Prime Minister Pearson and British Columbia Premier Bennett on changes to the price the United States would be willing to pay for Canadian power.

RATIFIED BY U.S.

The treaty for joint power and flood control development of the river system flowing through B.C. and the U.S. northwest was signed Jan. 17, 1961.

Key issues in holding up ratification of the pact had been: (1) British Columbia's desire to sell to the United States its share of the "downstream benefits" created by dams provided for in the treaty, and (2) negotiations over the price the United States would be willing to pay.

WHITE HOUSE PRESS SECRETARY

White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said he had no comment on the council's announcement.

INFILTRATION ONLY

Later the council's co-ordinator, Manuel Antonio de Varona, clarified that it was an infiltration movement.

Council members refused to say where the commandos started, where they landed, how many were involved and if more were on the way. Other exit sources estimated that 500 men had gone ashore so far.

The council originally was formed, with United States help for the purpose of launching the Bay of Pigs invasion April 17, 1961.

The commandos landing in Cuba represented three of the member groups—Rescue (rescue), the Revolutionary Recovery Movement and the Christian Democratic Movement.

"This is the beginning of the liberation of Cuba," said Luis Bollell, a council spokesman.

Varona said the infiltrators were well armed.

Foreign Control: $1,300 Per Man

OTTAWA (CP)—Foreign investment in Canada amounts to about $1,300 for every man, woman and child in the country, Jack Davis, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, said in the Commons Thursday night.

He said the new Liberal budget has faced up to the "substantial reality" of foreign ownership and control.

Mr. Davis, an economist and MP for Coast-Capilano riding in British Columbia, also said he would like to see Canada make a "tax haven" for industrial research and development, with earnings from such activities free of tax for "a substantial number of years."

THIS WOULD KEEP MORE CANADIANS FROM MOVING TO OTHER COUNTRIES, HELP THE GROWTH AND EFFICIENCY OF CANADIAN INDUSTRY, AND ASSIST CANADIANS TO BUY BACK CONTROL OF THEIR ECONOMY.

Mr. Davis said the book value of foreign investment in Canada is an estimated $25,000,000,000 and the real value is considerably higher. It would take almost the whole of a year's national production to buy it back.

CRITICS CALL ON GORDON TO RESIGN

... passed up chance

OTTAWA (CP)—Gilles Greig, Social Credit financial critic, formally called on Finance Minister Gordon to resign Thursday as the storm of controversy swirling around the new Liberal minister continued to grow.

However, both Mr. Greig and Colin Cameron, New Democratic party financial critic, passed up their chances to introduce motions of non-confidence in the government as the budget debate entered its second day in the Commons.

NOT REINTRODUCED

Meanwhile, Mr. Gordon indicated that the controversial 30-per-cent "takeover" tax on large-scale Canadian stock sales to foreign investors, which he said Wednesday was being withdrawn, may not be reintroduced.

Under persistent opposition questioning, the minister said that whether there will be another tax resolution on foreign takeovers "depends on government policy," and on whether administrative difficulties can be resolved.

DUTY TO RESIGN

Mr. Greig said the minister has a duty to resign "if he has any decency" because he bowed to pressure from financiers in withdrawing the takeover tax announced in last week's budget.

Mr. Cameron said the government is in "hopeless disarray" and presenting "a ludicrous spectacle to the world."

CRUCIAL VOTE

The life of the minority Liberal government was again at stake with a crucial vote of confidence set for Monday. The members will vote on a Progressive Conservative non-confidence motion criticizing Mr. Gordon for "failing to maintain the constitutional practice of the essential secrecy of the budget" and weakening public confidence.

THE MOTION WAS PRESENTED

Wednesday by Conservative financial critic George Newlin, who blasted Mr. Gordon for "stupid procedures" in announcing suspension of the takeover tax while stock exchanges were still open. Mr. Newlin suggested that "fortunes" were made as a result.

TIMING INEXCUSABLE

Thursday Opposition Leader Diefenbaker called the timing "entirely inexcusable and unwarranted."

MR. GORDON SAID THE GOVERNMENT THOUGHT THE DECISION "SHOULD BE ANNOUNCED AS EARLY AS POSSIBLE."

Prime Minister Pearson came to Mr. Gordon's defence Thursday by saying after a morning cabinet meeting that there is no question of Mr. Gordon resigning. Mr. Pearson told reporters any House censure motion against the finance minister would be treated as a challenge of non-confidence to the government.

Pearson, Expert Linked

OTTAWA (CP)—Conservative Eldon Woolliams said in the Commons Thursday night that the wife of the head of Harris and Partners, Toronto investment house from which the government borrowed a finance expert to help prepare the budget, is a first cousin of Prime Minister Pearson.

He charged that in engaging the expert, Finance Minister Gordon committed an indiscretion that affected not only his position but that of Mr. Pearson. He strongly implied that Mr. Gordon should resign.

FIRST COUSIN

Mr. Woolliams, speaking in the budget debate, said W. C. Harris of Harris and Partners is married to Ethel Bowles, a first cousin of the prime minister.

An expert on municipal finance employed by Harris and Partners, M. P. O'Connell, is one of three outside experts brought in by Mr. Gordon.

NO DIRECT CALL

The Conservative member for Bow River, while refraining from a direct call for Mr. Gordon's resignation, cited examples of chancellors of the exchequer resigning in Britain for compromising the secrets of the budget.

Among these he mentioned the case of Laborite Hugh Dalton, who submitted his resignation in 1947 after giving some hint to a newspaper man of what was in the budget.

Jack Davis (L.-Coast-Capilano), speaking after Mr. Woolliams, said some of the newer members of the Commons are dismayed at "the cynical attitude to the basic integrity and intelligence" of other members.

Cuban Rebel Forces 'Invade' Homeland

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The once-shattered Cuban Revolutionary Council bounced back into the limelight Thursday with an announcement that it had sneaked commando forces into Cuba to begin a war that would "definitely" liberate the island from Communist rule.

For several days, the council said, "perfectly-armed" fighters have been landing in small groups at several points and meeting with the underground. It added that they received a cheerful welcome and help from farmers in the landing areas.

STORMED BEACHES

First reports indicated that invaders had stormed the beaches, and the news caught Washington by surprise. A spokesman said the state department knew of no large-scale invasion and would know of one if one had occurred.

White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said he had no comment on the council's announcement.

Later the council's co-ordinator, Manuel Antonio de Varona, clarified that it was an infiltration movement.

Council members refused to say where the commandos started, where they landed, how many were involved and if more were on the way. Other exit sources estimated that 500 men had gone ashore so far.

The council originally was formed, with United States help for the purpose of launching the Bay of Pigs invasion April 17, 1961.

The commandos landing in Cuba represented three of the member groups—Rescue (rescue), the Revolutionary Recovery Movement and the Christian Democratic Movement.

"This is the beginning of the liberation of Cuba," said Luis Bollell, a council spokesman.

Varona said the infiltrators were well armed.

Labor Scores Heavily In Byelection

LEEDS, England (Reuters)—The Labor party won Britain's first "post-Profumo" by-election Thursday, with the Conservative party getting fewer than half the votes it received in the 1959 general election. (See also Page 3).

LABOR RETAINED THE LEEDS SOUTH SEAT LEFT VACANT BY THE DEATH OF FORMER PARTY LEADER HUGH GALTSKELL.

Labor's victory was a foregone conclusion, but the drop in Conservative votes from 12,558 to 5,986 was considered significant.

OTTAWA READY IN DOCK ISSUE

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister MacEachen said Thursday his department is standing ready, if needed, to help in renewed negotiations in a Vancouver waterfront labor dispute.

Negroes Give Word City Gives Lights

PLAQUEMINE, La. (AP)—City officials turned on the lights at a ball park here so Negroes could practice for a demonstration. Police Chief Dennis Soucy said Negro leaders promised to advise him "a day or so" prior to a planned demonstration. The city, in turn, extended the courtesy of turning on the lights at the ball park for a practice session Wednesday night. (See also Page 3.)

Reds May Agree To Global Airways

LONDON (LST)—Russia is now believed to be prepared to help create a global airway system to enable both it and the western nations to operate airlines at supersonic speeds.

One consequence of the visit to Moscow by Julian Amery, British minister of civil aviation, is the understanding that Russia accepts that a high degree of co-operation with non-Communist aviation is part of the price of wanting to fly passengers faster than sound.

A senior ministry specialist, who accompanied Amery said:

"I think that the Russians would even be prepared to accept a ruling that there should be a single language only used by supersonic pilots—and that it could well be English."

SPACE UNITY NEAR?

WASHINGTON (LAT)—Dr. Hugh Dryden, deputy director of the space agency, predicted Thursday that the United States and the Soviet Union may eventually co-operate in manned space flight.

Both nations are on the verge of agreement over sharing of weather data from satellites such as the U.S. Tiros, he said.

B.C. Wary of Boost

Provincial government officials kept their fingers crossed yesterday, hoping they haven't been trapped into paying a large share of the old-age-pension increase announced by Ottawa.

WHAT IS BOTHERING THEM IS THAT THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCED A $10-A-MONTH INCREASE IN THE BASIC PENSION TO $75, BUT SO FAR HAVEN'T RAISED THE MEANS TEST LIMIT WHICH DETERMINES ITS SHARE OF THE $24-A-MONTH SUPPLEMENTARY ALLOWANCE.

If the limit is not increased to $90, the federal government would only share in a supplementary allowance of up to $14 a month, leaving it up to B.C. to pay all the additional money.

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT PAYS PART OF THE PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT'S SUPPLEMENTARY ALLOWANCE OF UP TO $24 A MONTH TO PENSIONERS OVER 70, SUBJECT TO AN $80 LIMIT—THE $85 BASIC PENSION PLUS THE MAXIMUM $24 SUPPLEMENTARY ALLOWANCE.

If B.C. didn't pay the federal share of the supplementary allowance, it would appear to be putting the basic increase into its own pocket and leaving some pensioners with approximately the same total income they had before.

Said a provincial spokesman, "There's no doubt everyone will get the $10. What government could refuse?"

"But it would be most unfair if Ottawa didn't raise its means test limit at the same time."
